TARIFF BILL WILL SOON BE FRAMED

In Strictly Secret Session Conferees Are Taking Up the Free List Proposals of Taft.

AGREEMENT MAY BE REACHED TOMORROW

Washington, July 23.—The most striking sign of approaching quick and decisive action on the tariff bill appeared this afternoon, when the conference committee, going into session at 2:30 excluded the clerk and everybody else except the conferees themselves and went into strictly executive session.

The indications this afternoon are very strong that the tariff conference committee will report in favor of the following rates on the articles which have been the cause of so much recent controversy:

Coal, 45 cents per ton.

Iron ore, 25 cents.

Hides, 7 per cent. ad valorum.

Lumber, $1.25 per thousand.

Petroleum free.

There will be more opposition to the hide reduction than to any other of these adjustments.

It was understood that the conferees would stick to their task with possibly a brief recess for dinner this evening until all the "big things" which have given most trouble—iron, hides, coal, lumber, wood pulp, print paper and structural steel—were disposed of.

There were good signs for the finish of the conference work tonight.

This confidence in the ability of the conferees to get together by tomorrow night was further evidenced in adjournment of the senate until Monday instead of Tuesday. In the house, Representative Dwight (New York), the republican "whip" expressed the conviction that the conference report would be adopted by the house if it was brought in on Tuesday. He declared that there were sufficient votes pledged to carry it through.

RESULTS WERE EXPECTED.

Washington, July 23.—The "national issues" of the tariff, as the free raw material items have been facetiously termed, today stood out as the only dark cloud in an otherwise clear tariff situation.

While there are a number of other important items which have not been settled finally by the tariff conference, an agreement with regard to them practically has been reached and it was expected that most of them would be disposed of before the conferees adjourned tonight.

By process of elimination the conferees committee had cleared away nearly all changes in phraseology in all of the administrative features except the drawback and one or two internal revenue amendments and nearly all of the disputed paragraphs in the dutiable and free list when they adjourned yesterday. The only exceptions were coal, lumber, iron ore, oil and hides, and the manufactures of these raw materials, as well as the cotton schedule, hosiery, gloves, wood pulp and print paper and structural steel punched for use.

Compromises Arranged.

Compromises on all of these measures except hides, coal, lumber, iron ore and oil, regarding which the president has had much to say, had been suggested and considered by both sides with the prospect of agreement today. The five articles mentioned probably will be the last to receive final consideration and it is said that they must be disposed of together.

In support of the statement that none of the "national issues" would be disposed of individually, it was said that those conferees who have been holding out for the duty on hides would make no concessions until they learned what concessions the members interested in lumber or one of the other of the five items would be willing to make. By this method of reaching to make. By this method of reachdent Taft's program for reductions all along the line will be carried out.

Cotton Schedule Up First.

As a result of the special meeting of the house conferees yesterday for the discussion of the cotton schedule that matter was expected to be the first to be disposed of when the conferees met today. It was said that it practically had been determined to compromise the differences between both sides on the cotton schedule by allowing the senate specific rates to stand and cutting some of the senate advalorems where they were higher than the house rates.

The senate's increased rates on razors were slightly reduced by an agreement reached yesterday.

Important Questions Reached.

That the important questions to be decided by the conferees have been reached was emphasized by the presence of a large number of lobbyists who gathered about the members of the conference committee as they arrived at the committee rooms today.

Each of the senate and house conferees was interviewed by a committee representing the house "tariff insurgents," consisting of Representatives Gaines, of West Virginia, Mondel and Kennedy, of Ohio. This committee took especial pains to inform Mr. Aldrich of their desires and of the situation in the house. Asked whether they would vote against a conference report which did not grant their requests, Mr. Gaines said, "We are particularly avoiding that question. We are not making any threats."

Senator Bradley, who has prepared a new tobacco tax amendment intended to exempt the farmers from the six cents internal revenue duty on tobacco in the hand, was present to explain his new proposition to the conferees. He declared that he had made changes merely in the phraseology of his original proposition and that the new wording had been approved by Mr. Wheeler, acting commissioner of internal revenue.

House Opposes Commission.

H. E. Miles, of Racine, Wis., chairman of the tariff board of the National Manufacturers' association endeavored to secure the support of the conferees for the senate provision, authorizing the president to employ tariff experts. The house conferees have been unalterably opposed to any form of tariff commission and they have held out firmly against the adoption of the senate.

The senate amendment empowers the president to employ such persons as may be required "to secure information to assist the president in the discharge of the duties imposed upon him (by the maximum and minimum section of the bill) and information which will be useful to congress in tariff legislation. It is reported that the house conferees are willing to accept the amendment if the words "and information, which will be useful to congress in tariff legislation" are omitted.

This commission would remove the objections of the house conferees that the senate amendment provides for appointment of a commission and at the same time would permit the president to employ such persons as he desired to assist him in administering the tariff laws.

Going to Have a Bill Soon.

"We are going to have a bill and soon," said Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, after a brief call at the white house today. "The fight's over" said a member of the house of representatives who was an earlier caller at the executive offices, "because," he added, "Senator Elkins was over on the house side this morning raising the devil with us for not standing by the senate."

All of the congressional callers at the white house today left an impression that the president would win sufficient concessions in his fight for downward revision, especially on raw materials, as to make it sure that a bill will be advised which will warrant his signature. But anti-free raw material senators and representatives are still devoting their energies against the schedule on manufactured and finished products.

If raw materials are to be reduced almost to the extent of putting them on the free list, senators do not see why the same principles should not apply to finished products.

Elkins on the Platform.

"I stand on the republican platform and I am with the president" declared Senator Elkins today, "and this applies to his pronunciamento of last Friday too."

"So am I." interjected Senator McCumber, of North Dakota. "But," they added in a chorus, "we want to see the revision called for in the platform carried out without discrimination and all along the line. Why should such products as hides and oil be made free and the rates on cotton and woolen goods kept up so high you can't reach them on a step ladder."

"I have studied bills pretty carefully," said Senator McCumber, "and I find substantial reductions everywhere until we get to cotton and woolen goods schedules.

Strike Home to the People.

"These goods are ones that strike home to the people. In discussing this matter with the president I went so far as to say that we were willing to have a slight commensurate reduction made on raw wool if we could get a reduction in the woolen goods schedule."

President Taft has taken cognizance of the situation as to cotton and woolen goods and the senators who saw him today reported that he had

Houston, Texas, July 23.—Twenty-three reported dead, fourteen missing eight injured and a property loss totalling $750,000 is the result of the storm which raged over the southern coast of Texas Wednesday, according to dispatches received early this morning. The communication with the stricken district is still fitful and not until full reports are received will the full damage and loss of life be known.

With six known dead on Tarpon fishing pier at Galveston, the list of supposed dead of eleven Wednesday is cut down. Five of the supposed victims were rescued from the bay alive; the sixth was dead when taken from the water. The identified dead are:

INFANT OF M. CALLOWAY, Bay City.

CAPTAIN MATTHEWS, swept from the schooner Ellen in the gulf.

E. CHAFFNER, of Eagle Lake, formerly of Waterloo, Iowa.

BAYSIL DAIGLE and TOM MURPHY, Careron Parish, La.

CARS ON TOLEDO & CHICAGO AGAIN RUNNING

Only a Day Schedule Until New Trainmen Learn the Road.

Cars are again running on the Toledo and Chicago interurban line, but only a day schedule will be maintained until the new trainmen have an opportunity to learn the road. To all appearances the strike which tied up the interurban completely from Sunday night until Thursday afternoon has been broken.

Discharged trainmen have for the most part left Kendallville for various parts in the effort to find new jobs. One of them was a passenger on the second car into Fort Wayne this morning. It is announced that the new men are all electric railroad men of experience, but they are totally unfamiliar with the Toledo and Chicago roadbed and it is deemed safer to abandon the night schedule for several days.

Officials of the road say that traffic, both passenger and freight, is back to its old volume and that no further trouble is anticipated.

SPAIN WILL NEED A VAST ARMY IN AFRICA

General Mariana Says It Takes 40,000 Men to Crush Moors.

Madrid, by Way of Hendaye on the French Frontier, July 23.—It is reported that General Marina, commander of the Spanish forces at Melilla, has informed the government that he will require 40,000 men to insure a decisive defeat over the Moorish tribesmen.

CENSORSHIP IS STUCK.

Madrid, via Badajose, on the Portguese frontier, July 23.—The Spanish authorities are exercising a rigorous censorship over the publication of news regarding the war between the Spaniards and the Kabyle tribesmen on the Riff coast of Morocco. Nothing except official dispatches are allowed to be printed and communication by telephone to the provincial newspapers has been stopped. The government considers these measures justified on the ground of military necessity and because of the anti-riot campaign being conducted by the liberal and republican press. The entire edition of El Pais was confiscated today and all the republican clubs were closed.

The persons arrested yesterday in connection with the demonstrations against the departure of the troops will be charged with sedition and tried before a court martial. The outside world, the government officials declare, should understand, however, that the liberals and republicans are exploiting the unpopularity of the war for political purposes and they are suspected by the authorities of inciting the reservists, who were forced in many cases to leave their families without support, to resistance.

MAY BE FATALLY INJURED.

Wealthy Brewer of Danville Figures in Auto Smash.

Danville, Ind., July 23.—John Noone, a wealthy brewer of this city, sustained a broken collar bone and probably fatal internal injuries in an automobile accident at Crawfordsville, Ind., this morning. The machine, which was being driven by Dick Cannon, a nephew of Speaker Cannon, jumped over a ten-foot embankment while running at a speed of twenty miles an hour. Cannon was thrown out of the machine and, while bruised, was not badly hurt. The machine fell on Noone. It is a complete wreck.

IMPROVED, BUT STILL SUFFERS.

Miss Ada Sawyer, of 514 Fairmount place, who was injured in the Robison park car line accident Wednesday evening, is improving, though still suffering from the injury to her back and neck. Miss Sawyer received her injuries by jumping from the car while it was in motion, before the collision.

SAWS OFF THUMB AND FINGERS.

J. A. Metsker Injures Left Hand Against Buzz Saw.

The thumb and middle and ring fingers of J. A. Metsker's left hand were sawed off when the member came in contact with a buzz saw at a shop on Broadway this morning. Metsker, who is but 17 years of age, has his home at 2622 Broadway. He is now at St. Joseph's hospital.

DIED OF CHOLERA.

Koenigsburg, Prussia, July 23.—A young American who arrived here from Russia with his wife died today from cholera. The authorities are withholding names. The body was immediately buried with great privacy so as not to alarm the people. The man's wife and the railroad employes of the train which brought him here were isolated and the railway car in which he arrived with withdrawn from service and disinfected.

PROCLAIMS CRIME A PATRIOTIC DEED

INDIAN STUDENT WARNS BRITISH

Hindu Who Murdered Two Men in London Found Guilty in Hour's Trial.

London, July 23.—Madarlal Dhinagri, the Indian student who on the night of July 1 shot and killed Lieutenant Colonel Sir William Hutt Curzon Wyllie and Dr. Cawas Lallala, was today found guilty and sentenced to death at the conclusion of a trial of less than an hour's duration.

During the recital of the occurences at the imperial institute on the night of the tragedy, the prisoner sat in the dock listening unconcernedly and only once broke his silence by saying: "Whatever I did was an act of patriotism."

Proud of His Crime.

As the lord chief justice concluded in pronouncing sentence the prisoner drew himself up in military style and saluted. He said: "I thank you, my lord. I am proud to have the honor of laying down my humble life for my country. Your sentence of death is perfectly illegal. You are all powerful and can do what you like; but remember we will have the power some time. That is all I have to say."

Seditious Publisher Sentenced.

A. F. Hossley, printer of the Indian Sociologist, who was recently arrested on the charge of publishing a seditious newspaper, the avowed object of which was to "support the Indian nationalist movement for the liberation of India from oppressive alien rule by the use of physical force" today pleaded guilty and was sentenced to four months imprisonment. The Indian Sociologist openly approved the murder of Sir William Wyllie and Dr. Lallala.

PROMISED TO COME BACK FOR FALL BATTLE

John S. Wise, of New York, Expects Roosevelt to Return for Campaign.

Paris, July 23.—John S. Wise, Jr., of New York, who is now in Paris, says that former President Roosevelt, just prior to his departure from New York on his African hunting expedition, promised him and other republicans in New York that he would return in time for the mayoralty campaign. Mr. Wise says he has not given up the hope that Mr. Roosevelt will head the mayoralty ticket in New York this summer.

TREMENDOUS SLAUGHTER.

Roosevelt Party Has Secured Several Thousand Specimens.

Naivasha, British East Africa, July 23.—The entire collection of specimens of the Roosevelt expedition now numbers 2,000, covering mammals and birds of all sizes, from field mice to rhinoceroses and from small shrike to buzzards. It also includes several thousand reptiles and insects. Mr. Roosevelt's last bull hippopotamus, which he shot recently in Lake Naivasha, measured fourteen feet.

JUDGE GRILLS AN EX-BOSS OF LABOR

In Sentencing Cornelius P. Shea Court Roasts Him as Brutal.

IS AN EVIL TO ORGANIZED LABOR

Former Head of Teamsters Goes to Prison for Stabbing Woman.

New York, July 23.—Cornelius P. Shea, the former Chicago labor leader, who was found guilty on Wednesday of attempting to murder Alice Walsh, a former Chicago waitress with whom he had been living here, was sentenced today to not less than five nor more than twenty-five years in prison. The former president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters listened stolidly to Judge Foster's scathing remarks in pronouncing sentence.

"Your services for humanity are urged here in your behalf," said the court, "because you have been active in the affairs of organized labor. I believe in the right of labor to organize, but there is a prejudice in this community, and we must admit its existence, against organized labor, because such men as you dominate it with your brutal methods and your course, offensive personality and a part of the community has come to look upon organized labor as being composed of brutes and securing their votaries by brutal methods. But that is all wrong. I believe I am helping the cause of organized labor by ridding it of one such as you and sending you to state's prison."

NO CLEW TO SLAYER OF WOMAN AT HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

Twenty Suspects Held for Killing of Aged Lady as Husband Looks.

Hot Springs, Ark., July 23.—Although twenty suspects have been arrested and are held by the police, the mystery which surrounds the murder of Mrs. Amos P. Dorrence, wife of a wealthy coal dealer of Helena, Mont., is apparently becoming deeper.

Mrs. Dorrence was shot and killed in her room at the Parker hotel, Thursday, while her invalid husband lay helpless on the bed. He is still prostrated and is not able to throw any light on the crime.

Last night the police found a coat and straw hat which they believe belonged to the murderer on the door steps of the house adjoining the hotel. A New York man identified the coat and hat as his own, stating to the police that they were stolen from him the night of the murder. He was detained by the authorities for a short time and then released.

Gasoline Stove Exploded at Notorious Saloon With No Damage.

The explosion of a gasoline stove in the saloon run by Henry S. Sandkuhler at 1702 Force street known as "The Hole in the Wall," at 8:40 last night resulted in a still alarm being sent to the fire department. There was no one hurt or any damage, however.

EARLY VOTE SLOW, WILL COME LATER

City Primary is Passing Off Without Trouble in any Quarter.

RUSH IS EXPECTED IN CLOSING HOURS

Workers Under Full Head of Steam Labor Sturdily for Favorites.

Voting in progress in the thirty-one Fort Wayne precincts for the nomination of the democratic and municipal tickets is going forward without the report of the slightest hitch or trouble in any section of the city. During the morning hours the vote, save in the First and Second wards, was rather light. It came in more rapidly during the afternoon, and election officials are expecting a rush in the final hours of the primary before the polls close at 8 o'clock this evening. It is the general belief that the total vote will be heavy, despite the fact that the morning ballot was not up to expectations.

Reports from all over the city are to the effect that the voting machines are performing handsomely, that the voters are learning them readily, and that comparatively little instruction in regard to the operation of the machines has been necessary. In the Twentieth precinct of the Seventh ward the board had overlooked the adjustment of one little attachment on the machine, and for a few minutes this morning was unable to make the machine operate. By the time a call had been set for assistence, however, the difficulty was remedied, and there has been no further complaint from any quarter. Members of the lecelon board have remained on duty all day at the city clerk's office, but there has been little for them to do.

The early vote was heaviest in the down town precincts, and all day the First and Second wards have appeared to lead in the number of votes cast. The polls opened at 8 o'clock, and in most instances groups of voters were awaiting the opportunity to cast their ballots. Under the operation of the machines this is done in a mere fraction of the time formerly used to mark ballots. It is evident that the democratic voters in every section of the city are turning out much more generally than are the republicans, due largely to the strenuous contest for the democratic mayoralty nomination. Republican leaders in some cases admitted they have been fearing apathy in the republican ranks.

The Sixth (city hall) precinct had cast a total of 79 votes at 11 o'clock, while in the Lakeside precinct 70 votes had been registered at 9 o'clock. An hour later the Twenty-second precinct of the Eighth ward had cast 70 votes. Fifty votes had been cast in the Twenty-first precinct of the Eighth ward at 9:30 o'clock, 30 in the Fourth precinct of the First ward, and 60 in the Nineteenth precinct of the Seventh ward. At noon only about 200 votes had been cast in the four precincts of the Tenth ward, but the First and the Eighth wards the vote was heavier. The Thirteenth precinct of the Fifth ward had 180 votes at 1 o'clock, and the Fifteenth precinct of the same ward had about 100 at the same hour. Only a fairly large vote was reported from the Third, Sixth and Fourth wards.

scurrying hither and thither during the entire day, while the lieutenants of the candidates were in the field stirring up the voters and getting them to the polls. The completeness of the organizations of these candidates continues to be the wonderment of the average citizen, who has never before witnessed so elaborate and systematic a campaign plan for any nominating primary. A good many of the workers wore ribbon badges inscribed with the names of their favorites, and claims were just as strong and given with the same sublime confidence that has characterized the entire preliminary contest.

The Eighth ward appears to be one of the chief storm centers of today's contest, and here the vote is coming out heavier than in any other district of the city. It is Mr. Scherer's home ward, but the Schmidt cohorts have been attacking it with tremendous vigor and later Mr. McCulloch's friends got into the running in lively style. This afternoon Mr. Schmidt's friends were claiming the ward beyond question. In the western and southern sections of the city Mr. McCulloch appeared to be making an exceptionally good showing, and in the Ninth ward Mr. Melching was coming strongly. The Scherer workers appeared to be rather more numerous than for some of the other candidates, and they are putting up the fight of their lives to carry the Eighth ward man into the nomination.

Guessers are still as far at sea as ever on the outcome, and what little betting has been done has been merely the backing up of a personal opinion with few figures behind it. A few wagers have been made on Schmidt against the field, and some bets in small sums on other candidates at even money. However, nothing like the usual amount of cash has been chanced on the outcome for the very simple reason that even the most adroit and trained political prophets have never felt sufficiently certain of the results to justify them in backing up an opinion with cash.

Clyde M. Gandy, democratic city chairman, estimated at 2 o'clock this afternoon that from 20 to 25 per cent of the total vote had been cast, and expressed his belief that 60 per cent of the entire vote would be cast before the primary polls close at 8 o'clock. Mr. Gandy made the rounds of the voting precincts today to note the progress of the balloting, and found everything working smoothly. In one or two precincts the election officials, in testing the machines, accidentally registered a vote, but there are no cases of dispute, and in making up the totals allowances will be made for the accidental registration on the machines.

The official canvass of the returns will be made by the board of election commissioners at the city council chamber tonight. Inspectors in each precinct are required to transmit the result of the vote at once to the election commissioners, and in a general way the result of the mayoralty contest ought to be known within an hour after the polls have closed. The tabulation of the figures for all the candidates will, of course, require much more time.

The saloons of the city are declared to be locked up tight in accordance with the law. A large number of them were open for a few hours early today, but closed their doors promptly at 8 o'clock, the hour of the opening of the primaries. Not a single case of disorder had been reported to the police up to 3 o'clock this afternoon.

DEATH LIST IN STORM GROWING

GALVESTON SHOWS ENERGY.

Houston, Texas, July 23.—With the spirit born the morning of Sept. 9, nine years ago, when Galveston awoke to find her shores littered with eight thousand dead and the city in ruins the twice threatened city today began the rebuilding of the buildings razed in the storm of Wednesday. There will be no work of removing the debris as the waters have scattered it along the coast from one end of the island to another.

Later reports from the interior show greater damage and loss of life than sustained at Galveston, which held the center of interest because of a probable repetition of the storm.

Wires are still down and the spasmodic messages received fail to state the complete status and names of dead and injured are an impossibility.

Score Killed; Property Damage.

Such points as have reported, however, tell of a score killed, serious injury to half as many more, of fourteen others missing, and damage to property estimated at $750,000. Of those missing, thirteen are the members of the families of three brothers, Abernathy, who left High Island Tuesday, intending to go to Sabine pass. They traveled by wagon and were to camp out on the beach during Tuesday night, resuming their journey Wednesday. Part of their equipage has been found, the animals which drew the wagon drowned, but searching parties have found no trace of the three men, their wives or the seven children which made up the party. Onelme Herbert, a creole, is another missing.

Graphic tales of their battle with the waves is told by those swept from the Tarpon fishing pier off Galveston, into the gulf, who were rescued clinging to bits of wreckage along the beach near Morgan's point.

Tells Interesting Story.

Ray G. Teetshorn, of Houston, tells an interesting story. It was shortly after midnight of Wednesday, Mr. Teetshorn declared, that the first real alarm for the safety of Bettison's pier was felt. It was ten hours later that it gave way and the party of ten cast into the water.

"Shortly before the building sank we went to the roof," declared Mr. Teetshorn. "The building went down easy—in fact, simply crumbled beneath us—and we struck the water easy. Everybody scrambled for himself. I think all of us started off on some wreckage and the wind and tide carried us through the water, while the high sea beat us and the rollers broke over and beneath us. The first piece of wreckage I got onto crumbled and broke and I fished around and finally got onto a mattress which soon became water-soaked and sank. Then I scrambled about and finally crawled onto a piece of lumber about twelve feet long and I stuck to this until picked up.

"Captain Bettison, who owned the pier, was a cool fellow and went about deliberately giving instructions when the storm came up. With our life preservers on, we went to the roof of the pavilion to be prepared for the worst. Bettison, the poor unfortunate with cork legs discarded them early in the day, but I don't know what became of him."

CHAMPION.

B. B. Champion, formerly proprietor of a saloon on East Columbia street in this city, died very suddenly at Oklahoma City, Okla., on the 14th of this month. He had been gone from here for a number of years, it is said, traveling for a Cincinnati firm during that time.

FARMEN'S LONG FLIGHT.

Chalons, France, July 23.—Henry Farmen the English aeroplanist, today made a cross-country flight from this city to Suippes, at an average height of 150 feet. The distance, about forty miles, was covered in one hour five minutes and thirty seconds.

FATHER'S EFFORT TO FOIL CUPID IS FAILURE

Protested in Vain Against Marriage License for His Daughter.

Cupid was the victor in a sharp little contest in the county clerk's office this morning when a father appeared upon the scene and protested against the issuance of a marriage license to his daughter. The young woman was able to show that she was 18 years of age, and the license was issued over the objections of the father, who left the room a moment before the document was delivered to the expectant and happy couple.

William Sherman Snyder, 22 years of age, a car repairer living at 1137 DeGroff street, and Miss Daisy Agnes Calloway, 18, of 1632 Oakland street, presented themselves at Clerk Mason's office and asked for the license. Deputy Clerk Hammond, who doesn't often get an opportunity to officiate at Cupid's agency because of his sedate duties in the circuit court, chanced to be at the marriage license desk, and he began to fill out the necessary blanks as Mr. Snyder and Miss Calloway answered the prescribed questions. This proceeding was well under way when Cyrus Calloway, father of the young woman, entered the clerk's office. Pointing a finger at the deputy clerk, Mr. Calloway said:

"You have been forbidden to issue a license to these young people."

"Yes," interjected Miss Calloway, "but that was before I was 18. Now I think I can do as I please in the matter."

Officials at the clerk's office coincided in Miss Calloway's belief and the license was issued as the father left the room. The groom-to-be took no part in the discussion beyond the observation that his prospective father-in-law had always "knocked" on the match.

TARIFF BILL WILL SOON BE FRAMED

told them to go ahead and see what could be done looking to a reduction and he added that he would do the same. President Taft was told that a conference report might be expected by Monday night.

Congressional callers brought news of the activity of Senator Crane, who is using his abilities as "the great conciliator of the senate," to bring about a sentiment in favor of the president's program.

Shoe Men Stirred Up.

The senator was an early white house caller and expects a report by late Saturday. Some of the New England representatives who have been fighting tooth and nail for free hides have been stirred up by the cross-fire of the hide men who have demanded that the duties on manufactured leather goods be decreased accordingly.

Representative Gardiner, of Massachusetts, hurried to the white house today to tell the president that the reduction of the duty on the class of cheap shoes made in his district would simply be ruinous to the industry. He declared that even the existing rate, 15 per cent, was far too low.

SENATE MEETS AGAIN MONDAY.

Washington, July 23.—In the hope that the conference committee on tariff may be able to report by that time, the senate today adjourned until next Monday instead of Tuesday as would have been necessary under the unanimous agreement for three day interims pending the report of the conference committee.

Before adjourning the senate received a petition through Senator Dick, of Ohio, from the chamber of commerce of Youngstown, O., protesting against admission of iron ore free of duty. Mr. Dick also presented a letter from former Governor Harris, of Ohio, who the senator said was a representative farmer, protesting against free admission of so-called raw materials and specifying hides and wool. These Governor Harris declared to be finished products of the farmer and he asked for a duty upon them as a square deal.

Reviews Democratic Conduct.

Senator Culbertson took advantage of the opportunity to present a brief statement showing the record of the democratic party in the senate on the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. He asked for the printing of a series of tables showing the votes of the democratic members on the all more important questions before the senate in connection with the tariff and in doing so made a brief explanation. "An impression seems to have been created in some quarters that in thei raction on the tariff bill, which is now in conference, democrats of the senate have been commonly and seriously derived among themselves and have often voted with the protectionist majority," said the Texas senator. He then presented the record to show this impression to be unfounded.

Continuing his explanation Mr. Culberson said: "With the exception of the vote on iron ore, coal, lumber and hides, the democratic vote was practically a unit and on hides it was a unit when coupled with the proposition that leather, boots and shoes should also be placed on the free list.

Vote Was Unanimous.

On the income tax amendment the democratic vote was unanimous and on oil, tea and coffee, print paper and wood pulp it was substantially so, still more significant and important on all subjects of the bill which particularly and more directly affect the consuming masses and cost of living, such as crockery, cutlery, glassware, sugar, household goods generally, agricultural implements, blankets, flannels and hats, leather, boots and shoes, iron and steel and their products, including cotton ties, cotton manufactures, wool and manufacturers of wool; in fact, on all articles affected by the tariff which enter into the daily needs of the people the democratic vote was in effect unanimous and was for much lower duties than those which were adopted. It was upon the democratic initiative, moreover, that sulphate of ammonia, paris green and london purple, oleostearin and cotton bagging were placed on the free list in the senate bill which are the principal benefits to farmers and fruit growers in the bill, and it was also due to democratic initiative that the tax on tea and coffee was stricken from the maximum provision of the senate measure.

HER HUSBAND GONE AND CHILD DEAD, PLIGHT IS SAD

Industrious Wabash Avenue Woman in Serious Nervous Condition.

After working and laboring every spare hour of the day for the past eighteen months in an effort to support herself and five children after the sudden, disappearance of her husband, Mrs. Louis J. Miller, 1428 Wabash avenue, was unable to bear the shock of the death Thursday of her twenty-months old son, Merlin, and her nervous condition now is said to be serious. The woman's life since she was left destitute at the time her husband left the city saying he was going to Huntington has been one of constant toil and trouble with only the love given her by her off-spring to reward her. Her little Merlin she caressed and cared for as one of the few blessings of her life and when his young life passed out of the body, the mother felt that she had lost more than she could bear.

It is not known whether her husband, who had been an industrious laborer at the Western Gas Construction company, willfully deserted her or whether after going to Huntington he met with foul play some place. At any rate she has not heard from him since that time and there was no one else to aid in caring for the five children. She has been receiving a small pittance from the township trustee and others have aided her for they have realized how good and worthy a mother she has been.

At present she moans constantly because of the death of her son and little can be done to allay her anguish. The remaining four children are being cared for by neighbors. The funeral of the little son is to be held tomorrow afternoon though it is not known whether the mother will be able to attend it or not.

CARRIES HIS FIGHT FOR LICENSE HIGHER

Martin T. Piatt Takes Appeal to Circuit Court—The Court Notes.

Martin T. Piatt, refused a retail liquor license in commissioners' court, has appealed his case to the circuit court and will make a fight there for an order to compel the county board to grant him the necessary permit.

Piatt applied for license to operate a saloon at 216 Beadell street, in the rolling mill district, and on July 14 he was turned down in the commissioners' court on the grounds that he was not an accepable man to be entrusted with the sale of liquor.

About the Court House.

Deputy Sheriff Ed Courdevey this morning found a little child toddling along East Main street, clearly lost, and took the little straggler to the police station. Deputy Sheriff Walter Immel recognized the child as the three-year-old daughter of Oliver Weldin, 702 Clay street, and returned her to her home. The babe had wandered away from home early this morning and neighbors were assisting the alarmed parents in searching for the child for an hour or more before she was found.

WIRE ANSWER IN 18 MINUTES SNARES TWO FORGERS

Smooth Pair from the East Caught at Work in Room at the Randall.

Eighteen minutes after a telegraphic response had been received from Cleveland stating that a check which had been passed at the Romadka leather store Thursday afternoon was worthless, two of the slickest and smoothest forgers ever behind local bars were arrested about 10 o'clock this morning by Detective Lenz and Officers Dickson and Petgen while the artists were at work "framing" another check in their room at the Randall hotel. Neither of the men is over twenty-five years of age, one of them appearing to be an old hand at the business while the other looks like a green one. Both refuse to say a word concerning themselves and the police intend to make a rigid investigation to learn their records.

Though each gave different names both at the Randall hotel and at the police station, mail found in the pockets of the older man is addressed to "George H. Moody." Much of this mail was received during the past several months at Easton, Pa., and Moody has some cards printed with his name "G. Howard Moody, Bachelor of Arts," with the address as New York. In the rooms were found a printing outfit, typewriter, besides a revolver, razor and numerous odd pieces of jewelry.

Checks for $25 at Romadka's.

While Manager L. J. Alerding, of the Romadka leather store, was out Thursday afternoon, the two men purchased a trunk from the girl, receiving $5 as change upon a check for $25 given her. The check is on the Commercial National bank, Cleveland, and is made payable to Martin F. Fairfax by the Howard company, per C. C. Boyd. The men ordered the trunk sent to the hotel today and they would probably have succeeded in their trick had they not called to measure the trunk this morning. Then suspicion got busy in Manager Alerding's mind and on his way to the Randall hotel, he espied the two men purchasing a suit in the Epstein store, West Main and Harrison streets. Alerding immediately wired the Cleveland bank over the Postal regarding the check he had taken and in eleven minutes this answer was received, "Your telegram received. Check worthless."

In the meantime, Officer Robert Dickson was put on the trail and when the answer came, he with Detective Lenz and Officer Petgen were ready to arrest the men. They were in their room making out a check for thirty dollars which they intended to pass on Epstein upon receiving the suit.

Registered for Supper Thursday.

Under the names of Martin Fairfax and John P. Dolson, of Norfolk, W. Va., the men registered at the Randall just before supper Thursday. How much longer they had been in the city is not known. At the police station Fairfax or Moody gave the name of Fred Rogers and the other Frank Morris."

The men have not spoken a word concerning themselves though the "green" one said to Officer Dickson they were from Cleveland before the elder could shut him off.

A MURDER AT TERRE HAUTE IS MUCH A MYSTERY

Woman Dead Beside Track; Male Companion Had His Head Broken.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 23.—A murdered woman and a man who may die were found lying near the railroad track west of Terre Haute at 10 o'clock this morning apparently having been lying there since about midnight. The man is believed to be Charles Gerhardt, an iron worker, and the woman is Mary Winters. The faces of both were a mass of bruises and clotted blood and the woman's skull is fractured.

The man was unconscious and it was with difficulty that the police learned that the work had been done by a "gang." He may recover. The woman was found lying on her face on a good broadcloth skirt her head covered with a gunny sack. There is no clue to the identity of the murderers.

THINKS HER MOTHER SHOT HERSELF IN SPITE

Wife of Mining Engineer Under Arrest in Chicago Has Queer Tale.

Chicago, July 23.—Mrs. Agnes C. Mayfield, wife of a mining promoter of Mapimi, Durango, Mexico, who is under arrest in connection with the mysterious shooting of her mother, Mrs. Gertrude A. Hinkley, here on Wednesday, spent the night in the police station.

Mrs. Hinkley's statement that the bullet which entered her neck and came out through her mouth was fired by her daughter, is vigorously denied by Mrs. Mayfield.

"My mother's whole story is ridiculous," said the prisoner today. "I came to Chicago from Mexico to give her stock in the mining company, not to sell it to her. My mother either accidentally shot herself while planning to shoot me, or tried to commit suicide." Mrs. Mayfield intimated that it might be well to inquire into her mother's mental condition, and continued: "I have six letters from my aunt (my mother's sister), Mrs. J. L. Hutchinson, of Streator, Ill., which will help me. In each of these letters my aunt warned me to keep away from my mother."

Mrs. Mayfield quoted from one of the letters as follows:

"Dear Agnes: If I were in your place I would avoid your mother because I feel she will do you mischief if your husband does not come to her terms."

A second letter Mrs. Hutchinson is quoted as saying: "You know how your mother is—she will either rule or ruin. I fear for you if you refuse to turn over the 290 acres of mining land in Mexico."

Mrs. Mayfield stated that her mother's hatred of her began a year ago when she married Dr. Mayfield.

Hundred Thousand Club for Fort Wayne—Second 5,000 Buttons Just Arrived.

Join it, and watch your city grow to that figure as fast as houses can be built to accommodate the new people coming to town.

Fort Wayne has twelve steam railroads and five interurbans now; five more interurbans coming (possibly six) and three more steam—twenty-five in all, steam and electric. With transportation facilities implied in twenty-five railroads it is absolutely impossible Fort Wayne shall not grow to 100,000 population—transportation and population are equivalents.

Join the club, everything free, no fees, no assessments, no meetings to take up your time. You have only to wear the "Blue Button" (free, also). This is the age of button wearing—button, button, who hasn't got a button?

"Whene'er a noble deed is wrought,
Whene'er conceived a noble thought,
Wear a button."

Even to think well is praiseworthy, buttonworthy, to aim well, to wish well to your fellows.

How Money Is Wasted On 5-Cent Cans

When you get the right brand of Evaporated Milk, you are wasting one-third if you buy in 5-cent cans. Please read these facts and see.

Let us say at the start that every grocer has 5-cent cans of Van Camp's.

They are just as large as the 5-cent cans of vastly inferior brands.

And we sell more than of the 10-cent cans, because of mistaken ideas.

So, we don't give these facts to attack competition. They are simply to show how to get the most for your money.

Six Ounces for 5 Cents

All makers give six ounces of Evaporated Milk for five cents.

It matters not how much the milk is reduced by evaporation. It may be reduced as much as Van Camp's, or only partly as much.

All charge five cents for six ounces.

So you get just as much of Van Camp's for five cents as you get of the poorest brands on the market.

But you get but six ounces of any.

Sixteen Ounces, 10 Cents

In the 10-cent can of Van Camp's—the tall size—you get sixteen ounces of evaporated milk.

That means an even pint.

It means exactly one-third more for the money than you get in the 5-cent cans.

In Van Camp's you get 8 per cent of butter fat, about 28 per cent total solids.

That is because we use rich, Holstein milk. And because we evaporate by far the larger part of the water.

If you put back the water which we take out, you get about three pints of very rich milk out of a 10-cent can.

And that rich milk will cost you, if you buy Van Camp's by the case, just about six cents per quart.

That's what you ought to pay.

But the same milk in 5-cent cans—even when bought by the case—costs you over eight cents per quart.

The Mistake Lies Here

You who buy 5-cent cans don't get the full good of Van Camp's.

You use it for coffee and cereals, perhaps. But you probably use raw milk in your cooking.

That is a great mistake.

Van Camp's is fully twice better for cooking than the average run of raw milk.

Raw milk always separates, for the butter fat rises and the solids fall. So raw milk used in cooking is rarely whole milk.

In Van Camp's you get the whole milk—all of the butter fat and all of the solids belonging to the richest milk.

If you will try Van Camp's in only one milk dish you will never use any other. Note the flavor, the richness you get from it.

Van Camp's is fine on the table, of course. But it's also fine in the kitchen. It has twice the worth of raw milk.

Another Mistake

Then some people think that evaporated milk doesn't keep when the can is opened.

It will keep if you get Van Camp's. In usual weather it keeps 24 hours and it keeps 48 hours or longer on ice.

Keep it in the can, until you use it up, for the can won't hurt it any.

In the long run, what is best for you is also best for us. That's why we publish these facts.

Get the most for your money.

Buy the pint cans—the 10-cent cans. Then ask your grocer to quote you his discount by the case.

You save money by buying 48 cans at a time. And you save all of the trouble of buying from hand to mouth.

ROUND TRIP FARES HIGHER.

Revision of Rates on Wabash Valley Interurban Lines.

A revision of passenger rates under which the round trip fares are to be increased somewhat will take effect on the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley interurban lines Saturday.

The Fort Wayne-Bluffton round trip fare will be 90 cents instead of 85 cents. Between Fort Wayne and Huntington will be increased from 70 cents to 90 cents, single fare of 50 cents remaining the same; between this city and Wabash the round trip fare will be $1.55 instead of $1.35; between this city and Peru, it will be $2 instead of $1.70, while the round trip to Logansport will be $2.60 instead of $2.25 and to Lafayette it will be $3.95. All single way fares will be computed at 2 cents per mile and for round trip at 2 cents less 10 per cent.

The revision will also do away with the twin tickets issued in the past, whereby two people have been able to ride one way on a round-trip fare at the reduced rate.

RAIDING THE BROTHELS.

The periodical farce of police raids on the bawdy houses has just been enacted and tribute taken by the city from the miserable keepers and inmates of the brothels. Thursday night's predatory expedition resulted in the arrest of thirteen mistresses and some three dozen inmates. There is no record at police headquarters that anything like a blind tiger was sighted or scented—the same being a striking fact, inasmuch as it is officially admitted that there are seven resorts conducting that sort of illicit business.

But what have the people of Fort Wayne to say to this practice of periodically making a raid for money on the brothels of the city? It is merely levying a tribute on the hapless degradation of abandoned human creatures, the substitution of extortion for license—no more, no less. In this way a sort of extra-legal status is given the houses of infamy that the police recognize and the public is given to understand. And this is done—shame infinitely upon shame—for the benefit of public education, for the school fund rakes off the proceeds of these disgraceful and mercenary compromises with vice.

These police raids on the brothels do no good whatever. They do not in the least appreciable degree discourage or restrain the shameless commerce upon whose miserable earnings police authority is preying. No woman is attracted or influenced to a better life. No man is halted in his shameful patronage of this form of vice. Indeed, quite the contrary is true, for the impression is given and is general that domiciled harlotry flourishes by police sanction and under its protection.

If these raids were purposed with intent to stop the sale of beer in the brothels there soon would be but a small percentage of the places remaining. Without the profits of the drinks they sell at all times illegally, but mostly after legalized drinking places have been compelled by law to close, these resorts could not exist in any such numbers as now infest the city.

MR. TAFT AND THE TARIFF.

President Taft is managing his campaign for a downward revision of the tariff with exquisite address. He disclaims any purpose to dictate or to exert any compulsive force on congress. He is not insisting on specific features of schedules: he denies, even, that he is committed to or is insisting hard and fast on absolute free list for hides, lumber, wool, coal, iron ore, oil and some other commodities which his own in common with the general unbiased opinion holds to be essential to a proper relief of the manufacturer and the ultimate consumer. He has stated that he wants these features honestly looked into with a view to determining if there be any need of protection and if so in what measure. He also has made plain that he is very desirous that there shall be a reduction of rates on certain manufactured commodities, as for instance shoes, woolen and cotton textiles and the like.

In short, Mr. Taft declares himself for that sort of a downward revision that will take from the consumer the burdens that now bear down so mercilessly on him. He has held frequent conferences and war councils with foe of revision and friend of revision and without any bullyragging, dictatorial ordering or defiant snorting he has made it clear that he feels himself bound by an honest promise of his platform and his campaign utterances and under solemn obligation to secure to the country such amelioration of conditions as a downward revision of the tariff can vouchsafe.

At this time the outlook is very promising that distinct measure of success will be attendant upon the president's efforts. He has worked slowly, patiently and tactfully and if every prospect is not false the people are to have a great benefit from the happily considered and adroitly managed endeavors of this new president.

Argentina and Bolivia are apparently quite determined to find an ample occasion for war, and if it comes Chile and Peru will in all probability become involved. A four-cornered conflict will furnish plenty of excitement and burn up money at a rate no South American government can long afford. The situation is one that it is peculiarly the province of the international peace tribunal to mediate in and a fair hearing of the issues by an impartial court ought speedily to compose this quardrangular quarrel. Somewhere within the domain of possibilities is a holy rood for the foundation of peace.

Voting machines will have their first thorough test in this city today. Those used in the election last November worked in a highly satisfactory way and convinced the county commissioners of the wisdom of equipping the county with machines. Machine voting is no longer an experiment and those communities that stick to the old method of voting are not up with the procession of the times.

The rush to cross the English channel via the first current aeroplane route is quite certain to lead to confusion of traffic if not to disaster to aerial shipping. Suggest that the candidates for the mid-stream sea dip draw cuts for precedence. Or, better still, wait for one of the Wrights to come over and show the way.

The hilarious thing about an income tax is that it taxes nothing but an income That argues the having of something worth the having before you begin to feel the burden of a tax. And no safe and sane man will decline to attach himself to a $5,000 income merely to get even with an income tax.

Don't suppose the mayor is sticking hard and fast for exactly seven blind tigers. Suppose he's open to conviction that there be no more than six and that it is possible there are as many as eight. Must allow some reasonable latitude for an error in the returns.

New York woman wearing heels so high they tipped her out of window was up somewhat better on fashion than on the truth of that ages old admonition that pride goeth before a fall.

President Taft doesn't wholly accept Bourke Cockran's famous definition of a party platform as being like the platform of a car—merely a convenient arrangement to get in on.

The candidates expect every man to do his duty. And you've got until 8 o'clock if you've not been engineer on a voting machine today.

SOON TO OVERHAUL TREATIES WITH NATIONS

Extensive Program of Reconstruction by State Department.

Washington, July 23.—Secretary of State Knox will soon initiate proceedings with a number of foreign governments looking to a reconstruction of treaties. Almost immediately upon his arrival in Constantinople Mr. Straus, the new minister, will take up the question of a naturalization treaty with Turkey.

Under the regime of Abdul Hamid our dealings with that government were anything but satisfactory. Under the new rule, however, a very marked improvement is noted. Turkey having no naturalization treaty with the United States, questions of citizenship are frequently arising.

Cannot Transfer Citizenship.

Under the Turkish law a Turk cannot transfer his citizenship to another country and hence it frequently occurs that a Turk is a citizen of the United States under our laws, and a citizen of Turkey under its laws, out of which anomalous fact many complications have necessarily arisen.

The nations with which we have no naturalization treaties are Russia, Italy and France, and efforts probably will soon be made to come to some citizenship agreements with these countries. Indeed, negotiations to that end are now in progress with Russia, but little has been accomplished. This government is insistent that the passports issued by it to naturalized Jews, as well as to all other foreign born citizens of this country, shall be respected the world over.

Treat With Siam.

A treaty with Siam is a probability of the near future. That government is extremely anxious that the United States shall surrender her extra territorialy right in that country, and our state department is not greatly averse to doing so. She is very keen on this subject and under an American adviser, Siam has undoubtedly made long strides in the direction of modern methods of government and the United States has about reached the conclusion that it would be quite safe to allow American offenders against Siamese laws to be tried by their courts instead of our consular tribunals.

NAVAL FEAT IS DARING.

Submarine Under Battleship to Escape Collision.

Paris, July 23.—The officers of the Superior School of Naval Warfare, who, under the orders of Commander Schwerer, are going through a course of instruction on the battle ship Massena, near Toulon, witnessed a brilliant feat executed south of the Island of Sainte-Marguerite by the submarine boat Grondin. During the maneuvers the submarine flotilla advanced in a feigned attack upon the battle ship division. The Massena was steaming at a speed of twelve knots, when suddenly the Grondin emerged, only forty yards away, on the Massena's course.

A collision seemed imminent, but with great presence of mind the commander of the Grondin ordered a deep dive at full speed. This plucky plunge was executed so quickly that the officers on the Massena saw the propellers of the Grondin turning in the air. It was feared that the submarine would be smashed to pieces, but the little craft was seen a few moments later some distance astern of the battle ship.

The Grondin had dived to a depth of twenty-five yards and had passed clean under the keel of the Massena without the slightest mishap. When the fleet returned to Toulon the commander of the Grondin and his crew were heartily cheered and the commander was summoned by the admiral, but whether he was complimented for his presence of mind or censured for his plucky but reckless plunge is not known.

THE PURSE ENTRIES WILL BE CLOSED TOMORROW

Horses are Coming in from Every Direction for the Races.

Entries for the purse races for the Red Ribbon race meeting, which opens Wednesday, will close tomorrow and it is expected that every event will have a bunch of starters that is bound to command the interest of everybody who likes good horse racing.

Horses are now being shipped here from every direction and are being hurried to the stables at the Driving park. Among the consignments are horses from Indianapolis and other Indiana cities and Chicago and other cities in Illinois which are entered in the three great stake races. The stake races were closed some time ago.

Secretary Strieder spent Friday at Montpelier where a number of horses entered in the stake events are working out preliminary to the meeting here. There are sixty entries in the three stake races. Mr. Strieder is in Lima today making the final roundup at the races there.

Banners heralding the coming races have been placed on all the city street cars and cards have been placed in all the interurban cars. Interest in the races has been stirred up not only in the city but throughout the entire northern part of Indiana and western Ohio.

TWO SICK MEN ARE PAROLED.

Edward Hanley and John McGehee Must Leave Prison or Die.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 23.—Governor Marshall yesterday paroled two prisoners confined in the Indiana reformatory on the advice of the reformatory physician, who declares the men are suffering with tuberculosis and will die if they are not released.

One of the paroled men is Edward Hanley, sent to the prison from Vigo county, and the other is John McGehee, sentenced from Vanderburg county. Hanley will be returned to his home at Terre Haute and McGehee will go to Evansville.

The governor does not believe that these men should be allowed to die in prison. If they recover they will be returned to the prison. They are under sentence for minor offenses.

DEATHS IN CANNING FACTORY PUZZLE SCIENTISTS

Girls in Baltimore Plant are Dead of a Mysterious Disease.

Baltimore, Md., July 23.—Formal investigation is making by the state board of health into the cause of the mysterious deaths of two girls employed in the sealing department of the Continental Can company's plant.

The girls, both of whom died at the Johns Hopkins hospital after exhibiting symptoms which puzzled physicians, were Mamie Wiegand and Frances Charvat.

Dr. Marshal Price, secretary of the state board, learned that girls who had inhaled fumes emanating from a preparation used in place of solder in sealing cans had few white cells in their blood.

It was declared by Dr. Price that the coloring matter in the blood of the two girls who died was reduced from normal to 8 per cent.

The only case in any way similar to the one now under investigation was reported in Norway about three years ago. Several persons their died after working in a factory where benzol was used. Medical data in those cases have been sent for.

"Benzol itself is not greatly injurious to health," said Dr. Price. "Nitro benzol is injurious. We are trying to ascertain whether any of the latter went into the making of the preparation used by the can company, which has afforded us every facility for proper investigation."

Chemical tests of samples of the preparation used in sealing cans are making. Biological tests also will be made at the hospital. Three sets of rabbits will be used in these tests.

Silver collars go for 7c during our sale.

Negro Paradise—Washington, D. C.

Do you know why? Do you know why the white men of the District of Columbia gave up their right to vote? Do you know that the negro was responsible?

Do you know why the negro is practically shouldered out of his vote in the South to-day?

Judge Harris Dickson has written a brilliant statement of the negro in politics. He answers the questions: Is the negro in the United States a failure—Industrially? Politically? Socially? He traces the negro's record through forty years of freedom, from carpet-bagger days to the plantation and city life of to-day.

ACUTE DISEASES LEAVE THE BLOOD THIN AND WEAK

The Tonic Treatment Which Cured This Hartford Man Is Showing Remarkable Results in Such Cases.

When the body becomes run down, either as a result of overwork, worry or a severe illness, an examination of the blood would show it to be weak and watery. This condition is called anæmic, which is the medical term for "bloodless." The common symptoms are paleness of the lips, gums and cheeks, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart after the slightest exertion, dull eyes and loss of appetite. Anæmia itself is a dangerous disease and it may gradually pass into consumption. It must be cured by treating its cause, which is the poor condition of the blood. The vital fluid must be made strong and healthy thereby enabling it to carry the necessary nourishment to every tissue of the body.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the greatest builder of rich, new blood and they have been curing anæmia and other blood diseases for nearly a generation, during which time they have come to be recognized as an invaluable household remedy. The statement of Mr. F. L. Prickett, of No. 71 Asylum street, Hartford, Conn., shows how these pills cure cases that stubbornly resist ordinary methods of treatment. He says:

"A few years ago after an attack of pneumonia, I was greatly run down and did not regain my strength with the help of the doctor's medicine. I was short of breath and my heart pained me upon any exertion. I had constant, throbbing headaches and was so nervous that I could not sleep well. What little sleep I did get did not refresh me. I had no life or energy.

"I had read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. A few boxes helped me and in a short time I was entirely restored to health. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a good tonic and I can heartily recommend them."

A booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," showing what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have accomplished in many severe disorders will be sent free on request.

These pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

A NEW RELIGION IS FORESEEN BY DR. C. W. ELIOT

Will Not be Bound by Dogma or Creed Says Noted Educator.

Boston, Mass., July 23.—President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard university, in the course of an address before the summer school of theology on "The New Religion," discussed what might be expected as the coming religion. His address was based on the two great commandments, the love of God and the service of fellow men, and was much in the nature of a prophecy. He said:

"The progress of the twentieth century will bring about what I call the new religion. The new religion will not be based upon authority, either spiritual or temporal; the present generation is ready to be led, but not driven.

"As a rule the older Christian churches have relied on authority, but there is now a tendency toward liberty and progress, and among educated men this feeling is irresistible.

"In the new religion there will be no personification of natural objects; there will be no deification of remarkable human beings and the faith will not be racial or tribal.

Will Not Admit Sudden Conversion.

"In war times the tribal faith comes out strongly. The new religion will not afford safety primarily to the individual; it will admit neither a sudden conversion in this world nor a sudden paradise in the next.

"In primitive times sacrifice was the root of religion; even the Jews were propitiated by human sacrifices. The Christian church has substituted for that the burning of incense. It will be of immense advantage if the religion of the twentieth century shall get rid of these things, for they give a wrong conception of God.

"The new religion will not think of God as a long glorified man or a king or a patriarch. It will believe in no malignant powers and it will attack quickly all forms of evil.

New Religion to Be Monotheistic.

"Now, let us consider the positive elements of this coming religion. A new thought of God will be its characteristic; the twentieth century religion accepts literally St. Paul's statement: 'In him we live and move and have our being.' This new religion will be thoroughly monotheistic. God will be so immanent that no intermediary will be needed. For every man God will be a multiplication of infinities.

"This religion rejects the idea that man is an alien or a fallen being who is hopelessly wicked. It finds such beliefs inconsistent with a worthy idea of God.

Will Admit No Sacraments.

"It will admit no sacraments, except natural, hallowed customs and it will deal with natural interpretation of such rites. The new religion will not attempt to reconcile people to present ills by the promise of future compensation.

"I believe the advent of just freedom for mankind has been delayed for centuries by such promises. The new religion will not even imagine the 'Justice of God.' Civilized nations realize that legal punishments now frequently fail of their purpose, and the new religion cannot pretend to understand God's justice, for there is no earthly conception as a comparison.

"The new religion will laud God's love and will not teach condemnation for the mass of mankind. Based on the two great commandments of loving God and one's neighbor, the new religion will teach that he is best who loves best and serves best, and the greatest service will be to increase the stock of good will."

THE FATNESS OF HEALTH.

Samose Fills Out the Curves and Makes Thin People Fat.

Perfect health and good, solid, beautiful flesh can only come through the use of Samose, the remarkable flesh-forming food.

This makes the thin and scrawny, plump and robust; it mixes with the food so that all of the elements that make solid bone, firm muscle and good flesh are thoroughly assimilated and retained in the system.

There are thousands of unhappy, nervous thin people who would look and feel entirely different if they were only fat and plump. Let them use Samose and they will soon notice remarkable results.

These statements are confirmed by Meyer Bros. Co., who offer to refund the money to anyone buying and using Samose who does not gain in weight as promised. The risk is all there's. The thin and scrawny can buy Samose at Druggists Meyer Bros. Co.'s store, with the knowledge that if it is not successful it will cost absolutely nothing. Sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50c. For sale by Meyer Bros. Co.

When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. For sale by all druggists.

SPANISH WAR VETS HONOR MEN FROM FORT WAYNE

Captain Ranke and Lieutenant Cleary Chosen to Office.

South Bend, Ind., July 23.—J. Frank Kibbey, of Richmond, last night was elected commander of the United Spanish-American War Veterans of Indiana after a spirited fight with J. Henry Meirboom, of Jeffersonville. The South Bend candidate, whose name was carefully guarded from the public, was withdrawn late yesterday afternoon. The election of Kibbey sends the headquarters of the association to Richmond.

Other officers elected were:

Senior Vice Commander—Col. Theodore Louden, Bloomington.

Junior Vice Commander—Charles F. Zehmeh, South Bend.

Inspector—Charles F. Maxwell, Indianapolis.

Surgeon—Dr. R. C. Rogers, Bloomington.

Judge Advocate—John R. Kissinger, South Bend.

Chaplain—Rev. W. G. Everson, Indianapolis.

Marshal—W. C. Cleary, Fort Wayne.

Council of Administration—W. F. Ranke, Fort Wayne; Clarence F. Woodruff, Indianapolis; Thomas B. Coulter, Vincennes; Capt. Shepperd, Jeffersonville; Felix R. Farrell, Evansville; Charles Urquhart, Goshen, and W. E. Baum, Hammond.

Delegates to the National Encampment—W. F. Ranke, Fort Wayne; J. H. Neibaum, Jeffersonville; Otto Deal, Elkhart, and J. R. Cook, Richmond.

At a special meeting of the Harry O. Perkins auxiliary yesterday morning steps were taken for the organization of other branches. The South Bend corps is the only one in the state at present. Mrs. C. F. Kibbey, Richmond, was initiated and she will undertake the organization of a similar society at Richmond.

Military Order Organized.

The organization of the Military Order of the Serpent was completed yesterday with the headquarters at South Bend. The following officers were elected Grand Gugu Grandissimo—Charles F. Zillmoe, South Bend.

Thrice Inferior Famous Grand Gugu—John W. Clark, South Bend.

Lord High Keeper of the Amphoria—Dr. C. A. Warwick, South Bend.

Most High Datto—C. F. Kibbey, Richmond.

Slick and Slimy Keepers of the Ophidian—J. R. Cook, Richmond; O. E. Deal, Elkhart; W. J. Rubshaw and S. L. Monroe, South Bend.

Reports of state officers and committees were presented in the opening session yesterday morning. The officers reported the organization of ten camps during the year and an increased membership of more than 400.

If a resolution adopted is followed by similar action by the National encampment surgeon doctors will in a few years find themselves in line for good paying government positions. Taking cognizance of the rapid incapacitation of civil war soldiers, it is recommended that preliminary steps be taken for the employment of Spanish war veterans in their stead as surgeons at national homes for volunteer soldiers.

PADEREWSKI

Buys a King Piano at Cleveland as His Choice

The world's greatest pianist, Ignace Paderewski, has a brother living in Cleveland, Ohio, and the family is well known there as one in which every member is musical. This brother's son, T. J. M. Paderewski, has many of the musical traits, which, cultivated to a higher degree, have made his uncle world-renowned. The interest of the trade centers in this cultured young man just now because he has chosen and paid for a King piano—a new style 21 King—which he ordered for his home after examining several other makes in the store of the Muehlhauser Piano Company at Cleveland.

The Muehlhauser people are the representatives of the King pianos at Cleveland, but they also carry other pianos, some of them of famous makes. Therefore it is quite a compliment to the King style 21 and its makers that it should be chosen from among such meritorious instruments.

The following is the letter received from Mr. Paderewski by the Muehlhauser management, a copy of which has been forwarded to Mr. King:

Cleveland, O., July 8, 1909.

The Muehlhauser Piano Company, Cleveland, Ohio:

Gentlemen—I consider it a pleasure to certify to the excellence of the King piano which I purchased from you recently. GOOD SHOW; GOOD BUSINESS.

Majestic Airdome Bill Grows Steadily More Popular.

Audiences this week are manifesting the most generous approval of the Majestic Airdome's program, and it is an altogether satisfactory summer vaudeville offering that is steadily increasing in popularity.

The Wilson juggling number is very much out of the ordinary, and Mr. Wilson gets in a number of real surprises before his clever act closes. The character singing duo by Carberry and Stanton is unfailingly recalled, and there is a full measure of applause for Bicknell, Gibney and Schroder in "The Lady, the Lobster and the Wise Guy," as well as for Douglass and Douglass and for Frank Jones' pictured song, "Under the Maples With Molly O."

At the Lyric Theater.

In addition to an entire change of program in the moving picture and the Spook Minstrels who have made such a tremendous hit with their singing and dancing, there will be a big amateur show of some of the best talent in the city tonight, among them being Andrew Johnson in his love ballad, "Love Me and the World Is Mine."

Now is the time to buy your automobile cap, gloves and duster.

EVER HEAR OF LIKE OF THIS?

Bank Clerk at Terre Haute Arrested on Return From Vacation.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 23.—Howard Phillips, aged 22, a clerk at the Terre Haute National bank, has been arrested and has confessed taking $4,000 in the last three years. The thefts were made when making exchanges with other banks by holding out money and by manipulating the accounts. While he was away on a vacation his books were examined and he was arrested when he arrived home.

Young Phillips had been in Kansas City on his vacation and he thought his thefts so well covered he was taken by surprise when arrested. He had about $1,000 on his person. The examination of the books so far shows that about $4,000 in small amounts was taken. The big amount of cash he had with him causes surprise. He had spent money freely, and it was supposed he had used it as fast as he took it.

Not long ago a woman brought suit to recover from him some diamonds which he had taken out of a pawnshop for her for about $200. She asserted that he was only to keep them for her. Instead he had given them to a young woman friend.

Phillips is 22 years old and a member of a well-known family. He received $65 a month at the bank. The board of directors of the bank met yesterday to consider the case.

'BUS TEAM RUNS AWAY.

Guests En Route to Anthony Hotel Get a Shaking Up.

The team attached to the Anthony hotel 'bus took fright at a Lake Erie and Western locomotive shortly before noon and took a lively sprint down Wells, Superior and Harrison streets for the hotel. The driver did a clever job of guiding the runaways when the harness became loosed, but as the hotel was reached one of the horses fell and the vehicle came to a stop.

Four passengers were in the 'bus at the time, and one of them, Frank S. Clark, of Indianapolis, former member of the city council there, was slightly injured in jumping. Other occupants escaped injury.

Dressing Sacque of White Dimity.

(By Mrs. Jane Ford.)

For warm weather wear in the house a neat, pretty dressing jacket is indespensable, and the one pictured will be most satisfactory for this purpose.

The patterns for it may be secured in six sizes and will fit women whose bust measure is between thirty-two and forty-two inches.

To copy it for the average woman three and three-quarters yards of goods twenty-seven inches wide, or two and three-quarters yards thirty-six inches in width, will be needed.

The sacque may be made from any light weight tub material or from China silk, but dimity is particularly desirable for the reason that it is inexpensive, wears well and is made in dainty patterns that are attractive when fashioned into negligees. A plain white dimity, having a corded crossbar of stripe of white and a pattern such as is shown printed in pale blue, may be effectively trimmed with blue ribbon and fine embroidery or Val lace.

When making the jacket, after the goods has been cut and the tucks stitched, the pieces must be basted together at the underarm seams and at the shoulders.

The garment is then ready to try on, and in all probability will not require fitting but once. Should it be necessary to change the sacque across the bust the underarm seams must be taken up or let out, according to the required size.

To finish the sacque the seams must be felled, the front edges faced and the bottom hemmed. After the sleeves are made they and the collar should be adjusted according to the notches in the pattern.

The sleeves may be finished in shirt waist style, or they may be made short and left loose from the arm or the fulness may be confined by a band of the goods placed just above the elbow. When finished in the latter style it would be pretty to edge the collar, lower part of the sleeves and front of the waist with a strip of beading and a narrow edging of embroidery. Through the beading should be run a ribbon and the same used for bows to ornament the sleeves and front of the sacque.

FRAZZLED PLAY BY BENDERS LOSES A GAME

Fort Wayne Nails Second of Series at the St. Joe River Town.

South Bend, Ind., July 23.—Grant's quad tossed off another game to Fort Wayne yesterday, making it two straight for the visitors from the northeast corner. Umpire Eckman starred himself again by expelling Manager Grant from the game for debating a decision and then banished Donahue from the lot for mouthing cunning sayings from the bench at the expense of the arbitrator. Robertson was sent to second to cover for Donahue.

Charlie Alberts, who was chased from the game Wednesday by Eckman just as his balloon was rising, returned to the hammock yesterday and pulled off what he had expected to do the day before. He held the Benders to five safeties and the team kept the error column clean behind him.

Blount, Donahue, Channell, Elston and Lindsay did all of Fort Wayne's stick work, dividing the eight hits among themselves, Blount getting a triple. The scores were made in the fourth and seventh, while the locals got their lonely counter at the last wag. The score:

CHAMPIONS HOLD TO WINNING STREAK AT HOME

Shut Out Boston After a Late Start—American League.

Detroit, Mich., July 23.—Thursday's game was a great struggle until the seventh, when Detroit mixed three hits with two passes and an error of judgment by Wolter and scored five runs. Boston could not hit Killian with men waiting to score. Arellanes started the game, but three clean hits in the first inning decided Manager Lake to withdraw him after he pitched to one batter in the next period. Cobb's work featured the game. He got three clean hits and stole four bases, stealing second, third and home in the seventh. The field was very wet from the morning showers and rain stopped the game for fifteen minutes in the eighth. The score: R. H. E.

REULBACH WINS HIS NINTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

Big Chicago Pitcher Shoots Giants to Pieces—National League.

New York, July 23.—"Big Ed" Reulbach hung up his ninth straight comskin, pitching the champion Cubs to victory in the opening battle with the Giants 3 to 1. His dazzling speed, with the shrew intellect of Johnny Evers proved too strong a combination for J. "Muggs" and gang, and a flying start kept the world-beaters on top all the way.

It was not so much hard welting, but superior brainwork, that won for Chance's men. Save in one round, the opener, it was a pitchers' duel between Reulbach and Crandall. George Wiltse, the prize southpaw, started the tussle for the Broadway crew and the pair managed to escape the fearful wardclubs of the visitors with a measly allotment of five hits. But four clean bingles were gathered off Reulbach's unfathomable delivery. The score: R. H. E.

Make Your Vote Count For Fort Wayne

This is the day for primaries for the Municipal Election.

Nominees for city offices are being named by the voters.

The will of the individual citizen is being recorded.

Those LOYAL to the city and their convictions WILL VOTE.

Will the results spell PROGRESS or spell THE SAME OLD THING?

Is it not for you and us, voters of Fort Wayne, to say?

Are there enough who recognize that the WHEELS of civic progress ARE MIRED and that EVERY SHOULDER is NEEDED at those wheels?

Are there then enough so recognizing who will assume their civic responsibility and PUT their shoulders to the wheel?

Are there enough sufficiently keenand loyal to adhere to the idea that votes are NOT FAVORS but CONVICTIONS?

That a voter is lacking in SENSE OF RESPONSIBILITY who casts his vote otherwise, and merely as a favor asked for or returned?

That misgovernment and incapable government are BUILT of the votes CAST AS PERSONAL FAVORS to candidates?

That Loyalty to Fort Wayne, as your city and your home, demands that you RECORD YOUR CONVICTIONS as to the needs and policies of city government, IN YOUR VOTE?

If you and we cast our votes merely as favors or against our convictions, HOW IS THE CITY TO SECURE THE BEST AVAILABLE ABILITY TO GUIDE IT?

Will not the voter as well as the official be called upon to answer to the FORT WAYNE OF THE FUTURE for the mistakes of policy and blunders of administration of the Fort Wayne of today?

What profits it, even to ourselves, that this or that party administers the city SERVICE, if the City itself continues to BRING UP THE REAR of the civic procession?

Is not responsibility for our votes due more to our families, our city and its future than to the candidate who—for reasons—asks our votes, while not representing our convictions?

Is there any less doubt that votes that fail to reflect public opinion in matters of city government ARE WEAPONS PLACED IN DANGEROUS HANDS?

IS NOT THIS THE INDIVIDUAL VOTER'S DAY?

Is he using it for Fort Wayne'S PROGRESS?

Fort Wayne & Wabash Valley Traction Co.

Hot Weather? Yes.

Saturday Night Talks

By REV. F. E. DAVISON, Rutland, Vt.

"A Lesson in Tact"—International Bible Lesson for July 25, '09—(Acts 17: 16-34.)

In his missionary journeyings Paul came to the celebrated city of Athens, the seat and centre of art, eloquence and philosophy, the intellectual capital of the world.

Wonderful City.

It was his first and only visit to the ancient metropolis and it made a deep impression upon his mind. It was a city of temples and statues. Art and learning here had their home. Around him were the sculptured forms of Minerva and Jupiter, Apollo and Mercury, the Muses and other representatives of heathen mythology. It was said by an ancient satirist that it was easier to find a god at Athens than a man, for thirty thousand divinities were included in the Greek and Roman pantheon. They were heroic, fantastic or impure, but the city was full of them. There were streets so crowded with sellers of articles connected with idolatry as to be almost impassable.

Wonderful Opportunity.

It was in such a presence that the apostle now stood, and God gave him one single opportunity to declare his message. How did he do it?

A committee of distinguished Athenians waited upon the famous preacher, and invited him to address them on Mars Hill. It was the opportunity of a lifetime and a smaller man would have made a miserable failure. To preach in church behind a pulpit, to a devout and sympathetic people, who will accept whatever the preacher says simply because he says it, is one thing, to face such a company as the Athenian audience is quite another. Those people were critical, logical, hard-headed, accustomed to look into things, and accept nothing on the mere ipse dixit of a speaker. They prided themselves on their intellectuality and piety, and had no idea that a mere peripatetic Jew would be able to instruct them in either morality or religion. Yet they were desirous of hearing all the new things, and they politely invited Paul to deliver his message on that popular rostrum of discussion, Mars Hill.

Wonderful Tact.

The apostle's first word shows that he is not only a cultured Christian gentleman himself, but is master of the art of winsome speech. He disarms criticism with his first sentence. Instead of railing at idolatry as the old version implies, he courteously declares that his observation has led him to the conclusion that the Athenians are "very religious." "I passed by, and beheld your devotions," he says, "and as I did so, I saw an altar with this inscription, 'To the Unknown God.' That is, you worship all those you know, and for fear that you should be guilty of impiety ignorantly, you put up another altar to the unknown God. Now I have a message to deliver to you in regard to that unknown God." And then the preacher proceeded to talk to them of the God that made the world, and all the people in it. And in the most logical, sensible, courteous, and Christian way struck a blow at idolatry that is absolutely unanswerable from that day to this. Wonderful exhibition of tact! If you are going to win anyone, you can never do it with an ecclesiastical blackjack. If you want to convince a Catholic, you had better steer clear of attacking the Virgin Mary. If you want to win a Jew, better keep your hands off from Moses. You will never gain a Baptist by splashing over him the waters of immersion. To go at a heathen by denouncing idoltry as of the devil, will only strengthen him in his views.

To tell a man he is a fool because he doesn't believe as you do, puts it out of your power ever to influence him to believe as you do. You can't split people's heads open with the battle axe of controversy and introduce orthodoxy through the gash. The trouble with most modern controversialists is, they have no patience with anybody who cannot see exactly as they can, no matter what their birth, surroundings, education and training has been. Paul caught the attention of his audience and held it to the close, first by the wonderful tact of his approach, and second by his quotations from their own poets, which he cited in support of his doctrine.

The tactful person always seeks to find some common ground on which to stand, instead of some bomb proof fort from which to bombard the world. Paul argued that the very fact of an altar to the unknown God proved the religious instinct in the soul, and he caught at that blind feeling after God and sought to direct it aright. Whatever the outcome of that sermon, certainly the people of Athens would have no hesitation in declaring that those who listened to Paul that day received a lesson in sacred eloquence that compared favorably with any oration that had ever been delivered from the summit of Mars Hill.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

What the Sentinel Had to Say About Persons and Events Twenty-Five Years Ago.

Charles McCulloch, president of the Fort Wayne National bank, is the proud father of a son.

The Bicycle club, which now has fourteen members, will give a picnic at Rome City, August 15.

Louis Fox received a carload of peanuts yesterday, and A. C. Trentman received a similar consignment.

Prof. Hormel has been appointed a teacher in Emanuel Lutheran school on West Jefferson street.

The young voters of the Sixth ward met last night and listened to ringing speeches by James M. Robinson and James M. Kane.

The injunction proceedings to restrain the city from purchasing the canal was dissolved by Judge O'Rourke in a decision today.

This week J. H. Bass received six more fine Clydesdale horses from Scotland. Mr. Bass now has twenty head of these immense draft horses on his suburban farm.

A branch of the Cathedral parochial schools will be established in the Sixth ward this year in order to obviate the necessity of the smaller boys crossing the railroad tracks. The Brothers of the Holy Cross will manage the school.

At Rome City yesterday the following were elected a board of managers for Island Park assembly for the ensuing year: John Mitchell, Kendallville; J. H. Rerick, Lagrange; P. N. Stroup, Lagrange; Robert Larkens, Chicago; William Allman, Sturgis; C. U. Wade, Roann; Eden H. Fisher, Rome City; G. W. Mummert, Wawaka; Judge G. M. Buck, Kalamazoo; N. B. Newman, Kendallville; D. B. Hoover, Huntington; O. B. Taylor, Wolcottville; J. B. Carnes, Lagrange, and J. H. Lesh, Goshen.

The water supply now comes from the feeder canal, and some of the people try to look indignant. This water was used for two or three years without a murmur before the owners shut it off.

Prof. Spencer R. Smith, who for the last three years has been professor of languages at the Methodist Episcopal college in this city, has accepted the professorship of English and Latin at Park Institute, Chicago.

HELP FOR THOSE WHO HAVE STOMACH TROUBLE.

After doctoring for about twelve years for a bad stomach trouble, and spending nearly five hundred dollars for medicine and doctors' fees, I purchased my wife one box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which did her so much good that she continued to use them and they have done her more good than all of the medicine I bought before.—SAMUEL BOYER, Folsom, Iowa. IS HE THE MISSING LINK?

Go to the Gentry Brothers' Great Shows and See.

Has the missing link been found?

Is the Darwinian theory proven?

In Jim Bludsoe, the famous monkey engineer, connected with Gentry Brothers' Famous Shows, which will be seen here is the long debated question of "Is man descended from monkey?" to be solved.

J. B. Austin, one of the corps of animal educators connected with Gentry Brothers' shows says "Yes." And Mr. Austin ought to know for he worked as a fireman on the left side of an engine cab for months in order to get sufficient practical experience to teach his monkey pupil the intricacies of a modern locomotive.

He succeeded beyond his fondest hopes and now twice daily, at every performance of the big Gentry shows, Jim, alone and without aid of any kind operates a miniature steam locomotive about the arena of the big tent. Behind the engine is a train of cars, filled with money passengers, and a monkey conductor. The brakeman is Collie, a beautiful collie dog. While all of the animals in this act are wonderfully trained, Jim's intelligence is so nearly human that he is known as the "monkey-man" and some scientists declare that he has a human mind.

Chairs from the church will be supplied for the attendants at the services, which will consist of the singing of familiar hymns and a brief sermon by the pastor.

Dr. J. D. Chambers, editor of the Third Presbyterian Church Record, who is taking an extended trip through the northwest, writes from Fairbrook, Cal., that he is enjoying these days on a fruit farm and is daily improving in health. The beginning of August he will be in Portland, Ore., the guest of Dr. McGaw.

A meeting for men only will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Bethany Presbyterian church, Rev. John S. Burns presiding.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' society of Grace Lutheran church will be held Sunday morning after the services. Dues will be collected and business for the month transacted. Next Thursday afternoon the Ladies' Sewing society of Grace church will hold a meeting at the pastoral home of Rev. and Mrs. B. F. Brandt, 1014 East Pontiac street.

A meeting of the Young Ladies' society of St. Paul's Lutheran church will be held at the school hall next Wednesday evening.

CHURCH PROPERTY IMPROVED.

Brothers' House and School Undergoing Repairs.

Aside from the extensive remodeling that the Library hall is undergoing preparatory to its opening as the Central Catholic High school, repairs are also under way at the Brothers' residence and at the boys' school. The school this year will accommodate boys up to the eighth grade and will be taught by the Sisters of Providence. Students fitted for higher grades will attend the High school, where the teachers will be four Brothers of the Congregation of the Holy Cross from Notre Dame university and two priests of the Cathedral parish. About twenty-four sisters will be located at St. Augustine's academy for the new scholastic year.

We have sold nearly 200 dozen "Silver Collars" this week. We are selling the very latest shape in our 15c collar at 7c each. Not over six collars to one person. We want every man to try this collar. Our collar business this year is over twice what it was last year. It will be four times as great if we can get each man to try this collar.

SORRY HE STOLE $15,000.

Grocer Who Fled Leaves Confession of Big Theft.

Evansville, Ind., July 23.—George Harmeyer, a grocer who left the city two months ago under mysterious circumstances and who is alleged now to have uttered false signatures to mortgages and other negotiable paper involving his friends for nearly $15,000 left a confession, according to the discovery of the bankruptcy trustee, John Hutchison.

Harmeyer professed in the confession to be sorry for abusing the confidence of so many friends.

He was immune from suspicion because of his high reputation in business and in German society circles.

His case resembles that of the missing attorney, L. J. Herman, who left early in January and who was afterward found to have appropriated $30,000 from clients and fiduciary estates.

YOUNG HOFFMAN IS IN DEEP PLACE WITH POLICE

Stole $125 in Diamonds and Money from a Woman —City Court.

A moral leper who has been a stain and a stigma upon the city of Fort Wayne for several years is finally in a deep place with the police and a situation from which he is not likely to escape less than a penitentiary term. The offender is Henry Hoffman, who has been thrice married, arrested for petty offences on many more occasions and who has figured in numerous incidents with girls and women.

The charge now against the man who is not yet twenty-five years of age is grand larceny. One of the latest of his victims is Hattie Miller, divorced from a drunken husband. With the Miller woman he had spent a night or two at the Arlington hotel and yesterday afternoon while she was asleep he rifled her satchel and fingers of $95 in diamonds and $25 in money and after making a report to the police, Hoffman was soon caught. He retained Judge Hench as his attorney and a continuance was secured this morning.

Huffman is one of the young men about the city with whom the police have had much trouble. He is known to have figured in the slugging of the Syrian on the court house square several years ago after which he was absent in the west for some time, at the same period becoming involved with a woman and this trouble nearly put him behind the bars. Previous to that he had been married and divorced here and since that time has twice taken the marriage vows. He has a young girl wife now who is in a serious condition with nobody to look after her.

Round-up Nets $800.

The quarterly round-up of the bawdy houses about the city netted $800 in fines this morning. There were thirteen keepers and thirty-six girls arrested but this number is considerably lower than three months ago when the Chicago street houses were in full swing. Chief Ankenbruck says that the next similar occasion will net a still lower amount as the agitation here is resulting in a number of the red light women leaving the city.

Of the fine money, that which is the fine proper goes to the state school funds and the costs are divided between the city and the prosecutor.

Several Other Cases.

Judge Skelton ordered August Willig, the contractor arrested on the charge of his wife, to report to him next Friday morning when he shall have to give a full account of himself during the week both in regards to his earnings and the manner of their disposal.

A public intoxication charge against Joseph Baker was continued indefinitely as the man had never been in police trouble before.

JESTER FOOLS HIS FRIENDS.

"Sets 'Em Up" to Drinks Before Taking Poison.

Kokomo, Ind., July 23.—"This is the end of me. Take a drink on me, boys," said Owen W. Shepp, 26 years old, a structural steel worker, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Ade's saloon. Shepp displayed a morphine bottle and "set up" the drinks to the house. The drinkers entered into the supposed jest with acclaim and drank to his long life and health. Not a man had the slightest idea that Shepp was in earnest, else the bottle would have been wrested from him. Going to the Carter street levee, Shepp took two large portions of the deadly drug, and, struggling into an alley, fell prostrate. Two boys who saw him gave the alarm to neighbors. Physicians were summoned and worked with hypodermics and stomach pumps to save the man's life, but were unsuccessful. While being conveyed to the hospital department of the county jail in an ambulance Shepp died.

Coroner Harrison learned that Shepp had lost his position at the Pittsburg plate glass plant yesterday morning, that he was despondent and had determined to end all. Being known as a practical joker, his announcement of his suicide was regarded as a pleasantry.

Tomorrow we will sell 29 dozen regular 50c shirts for white collar at 19c each.

BIG DEAL HAS BEEN CONSUMMATED BY LOCAL FIRM

Induces Johnson, the Young Westerner, to Come to Fort Wayne.

A great stroke of enterprise has been carried through with success by the Bradley Bros. drug store, successors to Wagner drug store at 627 Calhoun street. Aroused by the widespread interest shown in Pittsburg and other cities concerning the wonderful new remedy called Ka-Vita, which is being introduced by F. H. Johnson, the young westerner, it was determined to persuade him to come here to explain it to the Fort Wayne public. In this, they announce today, they have been successful. Johnson will arrive here Monday and make their store his headquarters.

That ninety per cent of all ill health is due to stomach trouble is the new theory advanced by Johnson. He declared that it is the curse of the country.

In a recent interview in an eastern city he stated:

"In earlier days, when the human race was closer to nature and men and women worked all day out of doors, digging a frugal existence from the soil, the tired, droopy, half sick people that are now so common did not exist. To be sure, there was sickness, but it was of the virulent character and only temporary. There was none of this half-sick-all-the-time condition with which so many are now afflicted.

"In the horse, the cow, the dog (when let alone and not turned into a parlor pet), and the wild animals you see no chronic debility, no nerve exhaustion. It is because their stomachs are in sound condition. They are not shut up all day with practically no exercise, and they do not stuff themselves with food when their body has not had enough work to justify it. The civilized races have been doing this for years, the human stomach has gradually become weaker. And look at the result—most of the people are half sick.

"I have talked with thousands during the past year, and few, indeed, knew what was the matter with them. One said nervousness, another kidney trouble, another liver complaint, some said constipation or heart trouble, or lung trouble. Many had 'treated,' as they called it, for all these diseases at various times. A very common complaint is 'all run down,' or 'tired all the time,' or 'no appetite.'

"This wonderful new preparation, 'Ka-Vita,' has relieved thousands from all that suffering. Everywhere I have introduced this new remedy it has received the thanks from countless grateful people who have been relieved of stomach trouble and other illness attributed thereto by Ka-Vita. It will put the stomach in good condition in from four to six weeks."

Mr. Johnson or his assistants will be at the Bradley Bros. drug store from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day, to explain the nature of this remedy.

ACCUSED OF GIVING PASS.

Railroad Held to Answer for Alleged Law Violation.

Evansville, Ind., July 23.—The first violation of Indiana's anti-pass law of 1907 to get legal attention in southern Indiana is alleged in a suit brought in the Vanderburg circuit court yesterday by the Indiana railroad commission against the Evansville, Suburban & Newburg railway, which is said to have issued free transportation to William J. Becker, a contractor, in consideration of his agreement to use that company's lines exclusively in shipping car loads of sand to Boonville. The suit asks for a $3,000 penalty. Spencer, Brill & Hartfield, of this city, represent the commission.

TO JUDGE FLORAL PARADE.

Washington, July 23.—Invitations were sent today to Mrs. Taft, wife of the president, Secretary of War Dickinson, District Commissioner McFarland, Governor Crothers, of Maryland, and Governor Swanson, of Virginia, to act as judges of the automobile floral parade that is to be held here on September 20 next under the auspices of the Washington chamber of commerce.

THREE LIVES SAVED BY HUMAN SWING ON RAILWAY

Two Men Hang by Arms on Trestle and Hold Boy Between Them.

St. Louis, Mo., July 23.—When A. C. Stalder and Harry Herren, incumbered with a basket and a 6-year-old boy, were caught on a trestle over a flooded inlet at Chautauqua, Ill., they saved their lives and the life of the boy by hanging to the trestle, each by one arm, and holding the lad between them while a train rumbled past.

Herren and his sister, Mrs. Bertha Leonard, and her little boy, Raymond, were visiting at the Stadler home. Stadler, Herren, and Raymond went down to Chautauqua to visit Stadler's mother-in-law. They tied up their launch at West Bluff and crossed the Bluff line trestle to the Chautauqua grounds.

Caught in Middle of Trestle.

When they started to return home they knew no regular train was due and walked out on the trestle without hesitation. They were half way across the structure, which is sixty feet long and forty feet high, when a freight train rounded the sharp curve at West Bluff, within a few yards of the trestle.

Herren was walking ahead holding the boy's hand. Stadler was just behind them carrying an empty basket on his arm. They heard the rumble beyond the bluff. The next instant the engine came into view.

Stadler's first impulse was to catch up the boy and jump into the fifteen feet of water in the inlet, but he remembered that it was filled with logs and snags and he hesitated. Herren caught the boy up with his left arm and jumped to a stringer paralleling the rail at the end of the ties and was lowering himself over the edge with his burden.

Stadler caught the boy about the knees with his right arm and also lowered himself, holding to a stringer with his left arm, on which the basket still hung.

Swing Over Water, Boy Between.

There was nothing for their feet to touch and they swung above the water, each holding on by one arm and holding the boy between them with their other arms.

The engine struck the basket and the wrench of the handle on Stadler's arm almost broke his hold and left a scar. The trembling of the trestle almost shook their grasp loose, but the train was not long and they were able to hold on until it passed.

We expect a very busy day tomorrow and we will be a little short of help. Some of our boys are away on their vacation. Trade early in the day if you can, it will help us out.

WOULD STOP STATE COLLEGES FROM LOBBYING

Governor Asks Heads of Institutions to Conference in Fall.

Indianapolis, July 23.—In a letter yesterday Governor Marshall asked the presidents of the various colleges of the state and the heads of other educational institutions to come to Indianapolis and meet him in a general conference on educational matters.

Governor Marshall has not decided when he will hold this conference, but it will be some time this fall. The governor wants to know about the work that is being done by all the institutions of higher education in Indiana. His letter follows:

Dear Sir—It is not necessary for me to say that I am deeply interested in the question of education in the state of Indiana. My limited information of the work done by the different institutions of higher education in Indiana has not enabled me to determine whether our educational system is correct. It must be true that there is a science of education, and courses of study should be so arranged as to pass the pupil regularly through any given course.

The state has undertaken to furnish facilities for what is commonly known as higher education. Whether this is the business of the state or not, it is not my province to determine. It is sufficient for me to say that the institutions are now established and should be maintained. These institutions are known as universities and state normal schools.

There are also a large number of nonstate institutions of higher education. These are variously denominated colleges and normal schools.

Training is Different.

I do not pretend to speak ex-cathedra, but it has seemed to me that the function of the college differs from that of the university; that in the college instruction is largely imparted through the study of text-books, while in the university lectures and original research supply the place of the text-books. In other words, university training is advanced training. What the relation our state institutions, therefore, in the courses which they offer to the young people of Indiana, bear to each other and to the private institutions, is a question which I think well worth consideration.

In private life no man would expend money for anything which he could gratuitously obtain. Does the same rule hold good in public affairs? Is there any conflict between the nonstate and the state schools as to the functions each should exercise? Is there any conflict between the functions of the several state schools as they are now exercising them? If so, can these conflicts be reconciled in the interests of sound education and public economy?

Can duplication, if any exists, be prevented without injury to the institutions? Are the institutions of Indiana hindering and impeding each other's work? These, with various other phases of educational questions, I should like to hear discussed by the heads of the several institutions.

I can not see why large-minded men like the presidents of these various institutions can not meet in a friendly way and discuss these questions and reach a conclusion which will fix and determine the boundaries and functions of the different institutions of learning, put the general assembly of Indiana in possession of the exact needs, demands and rights of the several state institutions, and end forever the lobbying which, legislature after legislature, has been going on with reference to appropriations to these state institutions. By that I mean, determine what the state institutions ought to have, provide for it, and deprive them of the privilege and rid them of the necessity of button-holing legislators to supply them with the necessary funds to run their several institutions.

I write to ask you, therefore, how early this fall you would consent to spend a few days in Indianapolis in a general discussion and consultation upon these educational questions, if at all? Your early answer will very greatly oblige.

PFEIFFER AVENUE IS FAVORED; ALSO IT IS NOT

Proposed Opening Brings Out Both Friends and Opponents.

The proposed opening of Pfeiffer avenue from Sherman street to the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad tracks developed a contest at the meeting of the board of public works Thursday evening, when a remonstrance was filed against the improvement, and the matter was at first postponed until August 12. A little later, however, a delegation of citizens who favored the improvement and who hadn't heard of the remonstrance prior to its filing turned up and urged favorable action on the opening. The board will thresh out the matter next Thursday evening.

The resolution for the grading and extension of High street was confirmed after property owners had asked that the sidewalks be ordered placed at the curb in order to save their shade trees, but the board is on record against further permits of this character and the request was refused.

Other Matters Up.

The board confirmed resolutions for the opening of an alley and the construction of a sewer therein between Knitters and Rumion avenues from the old feeder canal line to Wheeler street.

The plans and specifications for a local sewer in the alley east of Oliver street, from Pontiac street to McKee street, and in the alley south of Pontiac street from the alley east of Oliver street to Oliver street were approved and an improvement resolution declaring the work a necessity was adopted. The specifications for the local sewer in the alley between Walton avenue, from the alley north of Pontiac street to the south line of Zauner's addition, were approved and a resolution calling for the work adopted.

The following improvements were reported as completed and assessment rolls ordered: The sewers in Forest park, sewer in alley between Crescent avenue and California avenue from Tennessee avenue to State street, and the sewer in the alley between California avenue and Alabama avenue from Vermont avenue to State street.

A complaint was received on the unsanitary condition of Dearborn street about one-half block north of Columbia street. The matter was referred to the street commissioner. A request for a sewer catch basin at the corner of Walton avenue and Green street was also referred to the street commissioner for a report.

832 IN THE BOWSER EXCURSION TO WINONA

Drizzle and Threatening Clouds Keep Many at Home.

Notwithstanding the drizzle and the promise of something worse in the way of weather later in the day, 832 people were in the crowd which composed the Bowser excursion party to Winona this morning. This was about 400 short of the number which would have been in the party had weather conditions been more favorable and to handle which the Pennsylvania company had twenty-four coaches at hand. Only eighteen were needed, however, ten in the first and eight in the second train. The first train left at 8:30 o'clock and the second at 9 o'clock and the former carried by far the greater portion of the people. It was in charge of Conductor D. Kearns and Engineer J. H. Stewart and was pulled by engine 7373. The second train was in charge of Conductor P. O. Dinklage and Engineer George Elk and was pulled by engine 7167.

REVISED RULES

Will Be Issued for Operating Interurban Cars in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 23.—The rules governing the operation of interurban roads in Indiana are being revised under the supervision of the railroad commission. After the disastrous interurban wreck at Chesterton recently, in which 12 people were killed, managers of traction companies asked the commission to revise the rules.

A committee consisting of C. D. Emmons, manager of the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction company; H. A. Nichols, manager of the Indiana Union Traction; Fletcher M. Durbin, general manager of the Evansville and Southern Indiana Traction company, and General Manager Jeffries, of the Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Eastern, met here yesterday to consider changes in the rules.

They will make their report within a short time and it is said that some important changes will be presented for the commission's approval.

HAVE SOLD 1,000 TICKETS.

Electricians Will Have Big Crowd to Cedar Point.

At 10 o'clock this morning Joseph Grosjean, who has charge of the ticket sales for the Fort Wayne Electric company employes' excursion to Cedar Point tomorrow, stated that he had disposed of 1,000 tickets and will sell at least 200 more this evening and tomorrow morning. This afternoon Mr. Grosjean has established a ticket office in the Aurentz candy store for the accommodation of the people down town who are not connected with the Electric works, but want to take in the excursion. The Fort Wayne Electric works' band will parade the streets again tonight.

CHEAPER INDIANAPOLIS RATE.

Lake Erie and Western to Meet the Interurban.

C. L. Hillery, general passenger agent of the Lake Erie and Western road, was in the city yesterday on business connected with a proposition to reduce the round trip fare to Indianapolis to $4.25, the rate now in force over the interurban route. The present rate to Indianapolis and return over the L. E. & W. is $4.80 and the proposition is to lop off 55 cents of this. An official announcement of the reduction may be made in a few days.

MOVING FROM PITTSBURG.

Wabash to Make Cleveland Operating Headquarters.

Following the announcement that the Gould interests have abandoned the proposition to build a line from Pittsburg to the seaboard comes the announcement that the company is going to transfer its headquarters from Pittsburg to Cleveland. In fact some of the offices have already been moved and the others will be taken there just as soon as the Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal and the Wheeling and Lake Erie are turned back to the stockholders.

WABASH EARNINGS INCREASE.

The statement of the results of operation for the Wabash railway for the second week in July has been made public and indicates a steady increase in the earnings as compared with last year's record. Gross earnings for the period amounted to $457,876, against $450,102 in the same period of a year previous, being an increase of $7,903. Since July 1st to July 14th the earnings have amounted to $956,442, against $898,249 in the same two weeks of July, being an increase of $58,193 in favor of this year.

VACATION IN OHIO.

E. K. Allen, of the Electric works, who will accompany the employes' excursion party to Cedar Point tomorrow, has arranged to take his annual vacation next week. He will spend it in Wauseon, Ohio, with his aunt, stopping off there from the excursion train while on its homeward journey. Mr. Allen will be accompanied by his wife and son Nelson and his father, Rev. H. N. Allen, of Elyria, who has been visiting in the city.

SUPT. BLAIR HERE.

W. L. Blair, superintendent of transportation of the Nickel Plate, arrived here during the night in his private car and spent the morning and a part of the afternoon with the division officials, talking about matters connected with the operating department of the line. He will return to his home tonight.

JOSEPH SLATER RETURNS.

Foreman Joseph Slater, of the Bass blacksmith shop, arrived home last night. He had been spending ten days with relatives in Kansas and Colorado. Mrs. Slater, who accompanied her husband to Colorado, remained in Denver to spend a week or two with her brothers and sisters.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Engineers A. E. Mills and T. H. Craven, of the G. R. & I. road, are off duty on account of sickness.

Charles W. Koenig, a hammersmith at the Wabash shops, has taken a two weeks' vacation, which he will spend at the lakes.

Cashier C. M. Jones has resumed work with the Pennsylvania. He was east on a vacation trip, accompanied by Mrs. Jones.

William Warner, traveling passenger agent of the San Pedro route, was in the city yesterday, looking up business for the company he represents.

Trainmaster J. J. Corcoran, of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton road, was in the city yesterday on business for the company. He resides in Lima.

Engineer J. E. Carrey and his wife went to Barbee lake this morning to remain until August 10. Mr. Carrey is employed by the Wabash and is in the local freight service.

Jerre Omspach, a helper in the Wabash boiler shop, had his right elbow pinched and the arm sprained yesterday while at work in the shop. He was attended by Dr. Kaadt, who says his injuries are not serious.

General Foreman E. E. Dildine, of the Pennsylvania erecting shops, is having a house erected on South Webster street, which will be the home of himself and family when completed. J. M. Henry is the contractor.

Assistant Foreman Fred Tielker, of the Pennsylvania freight house, enters upon a two weeks' vacation term tomorrow. He will spend it in Wisconsin and will leave tomorrow evening, accompanied by Mrs. Tielker and their son and daughter, for Milwaukee.

The Menefee Artificial Stone works were in operation as usual today, but the men were given an opportunity to vote. Supt. Harry Menefee said that the works were behind with the orders and could not afford to suspend operations even for a day.

Last May a jury gave a verdict of $1,000 against the Nickel Plate in favor of Henry A. Fleback, who sued the company for $5,000. The defendant applied for a new trial, but this has been denied. The case will now go to a higher court. Fleback was hurt in an encounter with Railroad Detective Beattie in the railroad yards last winter.

This is the thirty-first anniversary of the strike of the Pennsylvania railroad employes and the big riot in Pittsburg. The soldiery were called out and a score or more strikers and their sympathizers were shot down. Pittsburg was for days under military rule and the Pennsylvania depot and many cars were burned. It was one of the saddest scenes in the history of railways at Pittsburg.

The Wabash yesterday resumed traffic into Kansas City over its own lines, after being interfered with for several days on account of high water. All passenger and freight trains on the road are now running into the company's terminals in that city. During the high water the Wabash used the Santa Fe and the Missouri Pacific tracks in reaching Kansas City.

E. J. Bryant, traveling passenger agent of the New York Central lines, is in the city to accompany the Electricians and their friends to Cedar Point tomorrow. "We are going to give the excursionists a good ride," said Mr. Bryant. "The trains will cover the distance between Fort Wayne and Sandusky in three hours and twenty minutes, the best time ever made by an excursion train from this territory to that city."

A Strange Honeymoon

by C. N. & A. M. Williamson

"IT SEEMS a pity it should go to the dogs," said he. "As a matter of fact, I think it was cats," said I.

"If we married to secure it, it would be the same as if it went to both, for we should lead a cat-and-dog life together."

"Together? But we would say, 'Good-by; very pleased to have met you,' at the church door."

"Do you mean that, Cynthia? Would you agree?"

"Agree?" I echoed him again. "I should insist."

"Well—shall we make the experiment, and keep the money from going to——"

"Slightly inferior if less mercenary animals? Ye-es, I think it would be—wise."

And so we were engaged, my cousin Dick Thanet and I.

This sounds like a story, but there was more sense in the arrangement, from a cold-blooded point of view, than appears without explanation. The way of it was this: I had lived with Uncle ever since my beautiful American mother (his widowed sister-in-law) died, and left me to him as a legacy, the only one she had to leave.

Dick was the son of a mere half-brother, whom poor Uncle had cordially detested. But the boy had been named after him, and, besides, must inherit the baronetcy. When he was twelve he had been sent down on a visit, and had scored more of a success with Uncle than with me. Dick was the only Thanet left; he had done well in the Army and Uncle was proud of him; he considered it only fair, if Dick were sensible, that he should have the wherewithal to keep up the title.

We had preserved an air of mystery concerning our intentions, which was the easier to do as we were both orphans, and had no near relatives.

We were married in Guildford, near which town Uncle and I had lived. I had been fond of the old place, Hidden Court, but it had become Dick's and I never wanted to see it again. He intended to give up the Army, in obedience to Uncle's desire expressed in the will, and become a "landed country gentleman." I didn't think him cut out for the part; but that was not my business. I went straight to London, where I had engaged rooms for Lady Thanet and her newly acquired maid.

I laughed as I asked myself whether there had ever been such a honeymoon as mine? My days glided by in a blissful delirium of shopping; buying such things as I had always dreamed of and never had. In the evening I usually had a box at the theater alone; and it did not annoy me that many opera glasses were turned my way, for I wore charming frocks, Josephine dressed my hair to perfection, and I was doing nothing to be ashamed of. Oh, there is a great deal to be said for a honeymoon such as mine—spent alone!

I was married in June, and late in July I went to Homburg. It was luck for me that Uncle's will had forbidden any one to wear mourning, or I should have lost much innocent pleasure in changing the color of my costume every day.

From Homburg I went to Aix-les-Bains for the rest of August and part of September, then on to the Italian Lakes; and at Cadenabbia my real adventures began. I had flirted a little in a mild way, of course; but on the boat, going to Cadenabbia from Como, there was an Italian. There were others—lots of them, no doubt; but this man I felt sure, the moment I set eyes on him, must be a prince. He looked just as all princes ought to look, and seldom do, but as no one who is not a prince possibly can; at least, that was my comment on first sight of him.

I saw his luggage (easily identified, as his valet guarded it) and it was marked for Bellaggio, which was disappointing, for he was one of the handsomest, as well as most distinguished men I had ever seen. He seemed to like my looks, too, for he stared as much as politeness allowed; and towards the end of the lake journey, my heart beat fast when Josephine whispered to me. She said that there was a Prince Foruna on board (I had not deceived myself), that he was deeply interested in "maladi," that his valet had been asking questions, and on discovering that I was going to Cadenabbia, the prince had changed his mind, deciding to go there also.

Exactly how the prince and I got to know each other I can't remember with any distinctness. I rather think he picked up something, which I hadn't dropped, on the balcony of the Bellevue, and asked if it were mine. I think, also, that it was on the evening of our arrival. There were not many young or desirable men at the hotel, so the prince's attentions to me excited notice, and no doubt envy. I had never known an Italian before. This one's ardent impulsiveness astonished me, after the reserve of Englishmen and the stolidity of Germans. I hardly knew what to make of him, but I was interested and flattered; and when we had had ten days of each other's society, to my dismay he proposed.

It was moonlight, and he fell on his knees. I pulled him up as quickly as I could, with the news that I had a husband.

"I will not believe you, cruel angel; you say that to try me!" the prince stammered. "Your maid told my man that you were a widow."

"Josephine knows nothing of my affairs," I said stiffly (I had got her in London, and breathed no hint that I had been married the day before). "Sir Richard—my husband—is in England."

"Then he deserves to be punished for allowing a divine creature like you to run about the world alone, breaking men's hearts. I am sure he is unworthy. Divorce him and marry me. I will make you happy—and a princess."

"I'm well enough satisfied to be Lady Thanet, thank you," I retorted, beginning to wonder if Italian ardor were not, after all, a little trying.

This was only the first chapter of the hateful adventure which began so romantically. The man was a prince, but no gentleman, for he persisted in following me. It became a persecution. I could not escape, go where I might.

Of course, I might have returned to England, but Uncle had never encouraged me to make intimate friends, and there was no one to whom I wished to go, or who wished to have me, in America, my mother's land. Having eaten my Christmas dinner in Rome, with Prince Foruna looking unutterable things as he sat at a table opposite mine, I did not know where to flee next, until I heard that some English acquaintances—a mother and two daughters—were staying at Monte Carlo, and would be glad to see me. They were dull, but dependable, and I wired that I would join them. I traveled without stopping, but reached Monte Carlo only just in time to find my protective wall crumbling into ruin. Mrs. Brooke-Smith had received a telegram that Mr. Brooke-Smith had influtnza in London, and to London she was departing with her daughters. They were extremely sorry, but it couldn't be helped; I would find my rooms very nice; and from all accounts I didn't much mind being alone.

Three days passed—a longer interval by twenty-four hours than usually elapsed before the boom of the enemy's cannon. I began to hope that, by some marvelous good luck, I had contrived to cover my tracks with unaccustomed skill. My spirits revived. I made friends with some delightful Americans at the hotel, to whom I dropped a word or two now and then, as if by chance, about my husband.

My new friends took me to the Casino, and the husband of one of them taught me an "infaliible system" at roulette. I was amused, and one evening after dinner, when my friends were engaged for the opera, I ventured from my hotel to the Casino, alone.

The tables were crowded, and people were standing round them, five deep. I found a place, and was just wondering how I could manage to put a louis on seventeen, which was my lucky number, when a voice spoke at my shoulder.

It was the voice of the prince. Never, since our great scene at Cadenabbia, had he got near enough to whisper in my ear, but now he was so close that I could feel his breath on my hair.

"Dear angel, I have found you again," he said. "I have been so long on the way, because I have waited for letters, in answer to inquiries I have made. I know now all you would not tell me. Your husband left you at the church door. Your marriage is no marriage. It can be dissolved—it must be dissolved. I know, no matter what cold airs you may assume now when you are afraid of being compromised, that at heart you care for me. I could see it at Cadenabbia. Never can I forget those happy days, when you were your sweet, natural self."

"Leave me," I answered in the same tone of voice, but with my ears burning. "If you don't, I must call some one to put you out."

"You dare not. I know your horror of scenes. And if you try to go to your hotel, I will follow. I will not let you out of my sight.

"You must be mad as well as a coward," I exclaimed. If only my husband were here! I—I'm hoping he will come in now, any minute, and when he does——"

At that instant, as I made a pretense of glancing expectantly round, my eyes caught Dick's.

He was standing on the opposite side of the table, looking at me.

He recognized that I was in trouble and before I could have counted ten, he had crossed the room, and I was holding out a convulsively friendly hand. "Oh, Dick dear, I am so glad you've come in at last!" I sighed. "I have been expecting you for ages."

"I was delayed," he tactfully answered, earning my gratitude by rising to the situation. He stared haughtily at the Italian, whom he must have seen talking over my shoulder, and I blessed the 'pride and conceit' with which I had once found open fault. "If you're ready now, my child, we'll go."

By my husband's side, I swept past the prince, who fell back a few steps, pale as ashes. I did not look at him, and we went out together, Dick and I.

In the atrium, I panted, with the weakness of reaction in my knees. "Don't trouble to get your coat and hat for my sake," I said. "My hotel is quite close. I'm stopping at the Hermitage."

"I shall certainly not permit you to go to it alone—in the 'circumstances' to which you refer," replied Dick, with a grim smile. "You must really allow me to take you there, Cynthia."

I was in a mood to be easily quelled. "There are—some things I should like to explain to you," I stammered. "But—you see—at the hotel——"

"Shall we have supper together at Ciro's then?"

"I couldn't eat."

"That needn't prevent me from ordering something."

"I suppose you think I'm good at acting," said I. "Very well: we'll have a table, and talk."

A few minutes later we were in a more or less retired corner of the restaurant. As, in the crisis of my despair, I had called Dick "dear Dick," I thought I owed it to myself to explain everything, and I did so, beginning with Cadenabbia and working slowly up to Monte Carlo. "Of course I'd no idea you were really here," I finished. "But when I saw you, as if by magic, I couldn't resist——"

"No excuses are necessary. You did exactly the right thing."

"Your face looks as if you'd like to add for the first time."

"Never mind my face. You've certainly been extremely imprudent, but I don't want to scold you. Perhaps I haven't the right. What I must do is to suggest a remedy—if one can be found. You say you've told other people besides that fellow that you expected your husband."

"Not exactly expected. Even a tarradiddle is better than being gossiped about, perhaps."

"Well, here I am. I assure you, I'd no more idea of finding you than you had of seeing me. But everybody comes to Monte Carlo. I arrived only this evening, and took rooms at the Hermitage."

"Indeed!"

"Here's either a complication or a solving of the puzzle. As you say, you've had enough of gossip and I've had enough of it also—for my wife."

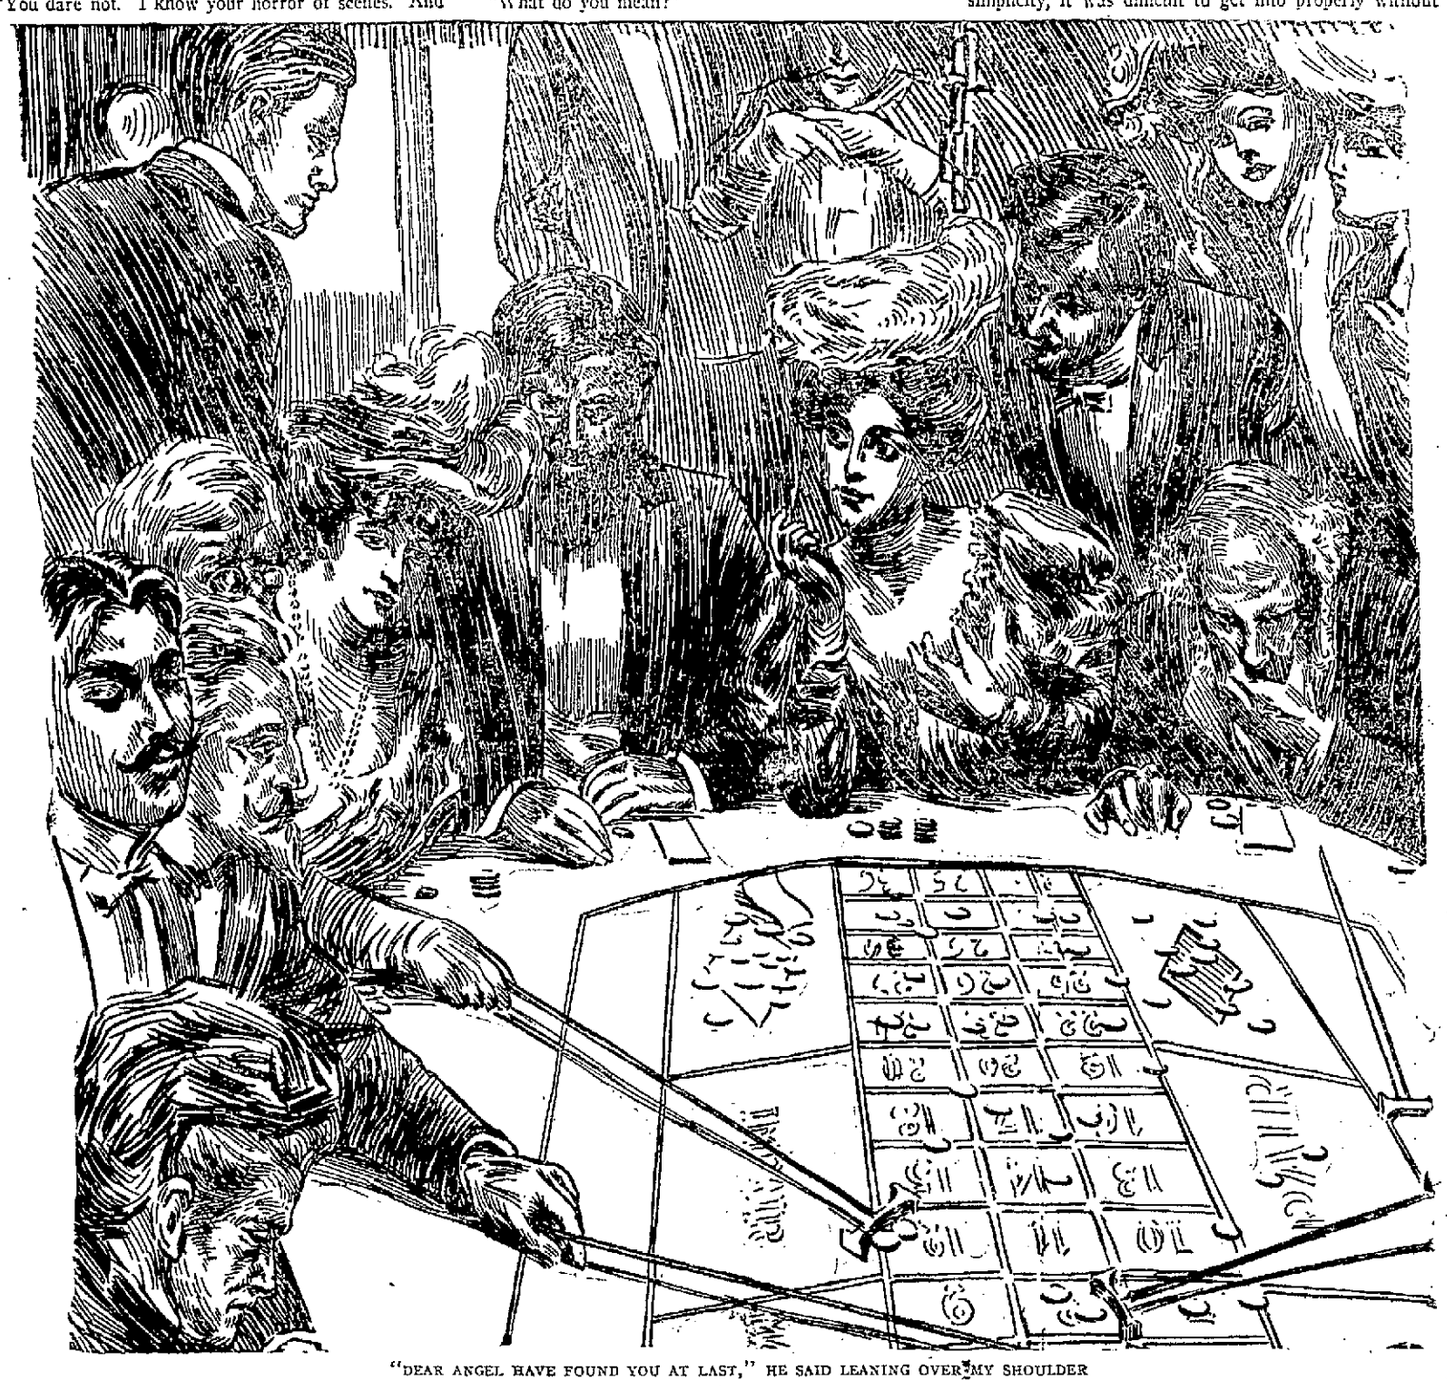
"Your wife? Well—I suppose—I am."

"You are. And you've just claimed me as your husband. As I was going on to say, things being as they are, we can't very well continue to stop in the same hotel and act like strangers."

"Couldn't we act like cousins?"

"There's no such happy medium. Either you must go back to England at once, and I must leave Monte Carlo at the same time, or else—we must stop on here as husband and wife."

"What do you mean?"



"DEAR ANGEL HAVE FOUND YOU AT LAST," HE SAID LEANING OVER MY SHOULDER

"I must tell the manager of the hotel that my rooms were alloted by mistake, and I must have a suite adjoining that of my wife, who has been awaiting my arrival. We need have nothing to do with each other in private, but in public we must go everywhere together. This must continue until I can engage for you a respectable, elderly dragon, capable of frightening adventurers away, and shielding you from scandal, if you're determined to spend your life wandering about the Continent."

Thus it was settled. What Dick said to the manager, I never learned, for I took pains not to be present at the interview; but half an hour after returning to the hotel I heard sounds of luggage being moved into a room next to mine. Presently a polite person knocked, and proposed removing a wardrobe which covered the door between the rooms of Monsieur and Madame. I was about to forbid this, with haughty astonishment at the suggestion, when I caught sight of Dick standing behind the man, in the corridor, shaking his head. Then I remembered for the second time that night that Dick and I were really—really husband and wife.

When the polite person had gone, leaving the door of communication wide open, Dick appeared on the threshold and gravely handed me the key.

"Good night," we said simultaneously. Next morning we met outside my door, in the corridor. I fancy he must have been waiting. I had put on a new white frock, and he looked the cleanest, best-groomed fellow imaginable, in his gray flannels and light waistcoat.

"I thought we ought to go down together," he said.

We did so, and met the Americans I liked in the big hall. Of course I introduced them. It seemed very odd to say "my husband," quite seriously. I caught Dick's eyes, and they twinkled. It was all I could do to keep from breaking into a giggle.

"What are you going to do to-day?" asked Mrs. Rowan. She was about five years older than I, chic and gracious, but not as pretty as her sister, Miss Everett, who was about my age. "My husband has suggested going to La Turbie this morning, exploring the old town, and lunching at that jolly restaurant up there. Lord Northlands will be with us. How nice if you and Sir Richard would join the party!"

At least it would relieve the situation to have a settled program, for Dick and I knew neither what to do with ourselves nor each other. Lord Northlands was a bridgery old bachelor, epris with Doris Everett. He would cling to her during the excursion, I told myself; Dick would have Mrs. Rowan, and I her husband, who was very witty and amusing.

After a glance at each other, Dick and I accepted. We went up in the funiculaire, but there was not room for us all in the same carriage, and the members of the party assorted themselves differently from my original plan. Dick annexed Miss Everett; Mr. and Mrs. Rowan, who had not been married long, and were so ridiculously in love that they always made excuses to be together, stuck to each other, and there was no one left for me but Lord Northlands.

I was vexed, and so I am sure was he; but we had to make the best of it, as everyone else seemed supremely satisfied. I couldn't help looking at Dick and Miss Everett, who were a handsome couple; he so dark, she so fair; and they appeared extraordinarily congenial, too, for they talked continuously, hardly stopping to throw a glance at the scenery. I wondered what they found to "jabber about like that," until I grew so absent minded that I said "yes" and "no" in the wrong places, to Lord Northlands.

Somehow, when I was dressing for dinner that evening (we were all going over to see the "Rooms" afterwards) I had the most violent desire to wear a prettier frock than anything Miss Everett could possibly have. I owned one particularly lovely gown, which had arrived from Paris a couple of days before. The one trouble was that, though it gave an effect of extreme simplicity, it was difficult to get into properly without the help of a maid. However, I longed to see myself in that moonlight shimmer of white chiffon and opalescent sequins, so I determined to risk it.

I slipped hail into the dress, and rang for the femme de chambre to "faire ma robe." She did her best, but it was not a best equal to the emergency. When I had sent her away I tried to undo her work, but the dress fastened behind, and under one arm, and in a few other places. I had arrived at the pitch of desperation, when I heard a depreatory tap. Without stopping to think whence it sounded, I cried "Entrez!" and Dick appeared in his doorway, looking shamefaced, without coat, collar or waistcoat.

Something tragic had occurred, it seemed. He had lost a stud—the sort of stud which, to a man's toilet, is what the axis is to the earth. He had looked everywhere in vain.

Had I perchance any makeshift which I could lend him?

I searched, and found a gold stud among my belongings. It was too big for the buttonhole at the back of Dick's neck, but I gave my services, with the air of an early Christian martyr, and contrived to force the thing in. The same process had to be gone through in putting on the collar. Dick has a nice throat. It looked like pale bronze to where the top of the collar came, where it melted into white. It was like a bronze head set on a marble neck, I was thinking, when he asked, laughing, if there was nothing he could do in payment for my kindness.

I bethought me of my wrongly fastened dress, and, before I knew what I was saying, had confided my troubles to Dick. It took him half an hour to put me right, for men are so clumsy; but by the end of that time we were friends again—better friends than we had been yet: for how can you be coldly dignified with a person who is hooking up your frock? And besides, it appeared that Miss Everett was much too plump to be really beautiful in Dick's opinion: he liked tall, slender girls, which proved that his taste was more refined than I had thought it, and made me feel that, after all, we had a good deal in common.

Several days passed. Dick had bought a motor-car, and we took some fine excursions, seldom returning till evening, and generally missing a lady or two who had called in answer to the advertisement. But, judging from the description given of these dames by the concierge our absence did not signify. Shoals of letters arrived also, but Dick and I talked them over and decided that there was not one which was suitable. Vexatious as the situation was, I felt that anything would be better than to be saddled with an undesirable female, far more difficult to get rid of than Dick. As for him, he was wonderfully good-natured and volunteered with well-feigned cheerfulness to "see me through till something good came along." At last I heard from a lady of such unimpeachable character and connections that it seemed like flying in the face of Providence not to take her. Mrs. Mabbett had traveled to the Riviera with an invalid who had died, leaving her late companion stranded at a cheap pension in Nice. I was horribly depressed by her, and Dick (who was making a projected trip to America an excuse for leaving his wife to the tender mercies of a chaperon) also appeared overpowered. He said that the way Mrs. Mabbett had of pointing at things with her little finger got on his nerves, and advised me to look farther, though clearly it was useless to hope for anything better. There were other elderly ladies in the world, he repeated, and the right one must be somewhere; we both had plenty of time, and really, we seemed to interfere with each other singularly little.

This was the tenor of his opinion one day, but the next the wind had veered. Just as I had become quite cheerful in the thought of letting that paragon, Mrs. Mabbett, slip through my fingers Dick not only advised me to have her, but to have her at once. He was obliged to go away immediately, he announced, and might not see me again for a long time. He would, therefore, be easier in his mind if he could leave me in charge of a responsible person.

"Oh, very well, if you're so anxious to get rid of me!" I was on the point of saying, when I remembered in time that there could be no question of anything else. Of course he was anxious to get rid of me. Of course I was anxious to get rid of him.

But there certainly was something unusual in his manner that day. He was absent-minded, and more than once I caught his eyes fixed upon me with an odd expression which might have been reproachful or merely sad.

When I had come up to my room after an evening at the Casino, Dick tapped at my door, and opening it at the word of permission, he inquired:

"Did you write to Mrs. Mabbett?"

I nodded.

"That's all right, then." He paused, but still he lingered in the doorway.

"Is there anything else you want to say to me?"

"No-o. Except good-night and—er—good-by for a day or two, perhaps—or—it may be more. I'm making a very early start and—I can't be quite sure of my plans until after to-morrow. Yes—there is one more thing. I'd like to thank you, Cyn. You don't mind my calling you by uncle's old pet name just for once, do you? It's a dear, quaint little name, I think. What I want to thank you for is—a happy fortnight. It's been—very remarkable in some ways."

"It has been—queer," I admitted.

And now it's come to an end! Well—good-by."

"Good-by."

"Won't you—shake hands?"

I held out mine, looking up at him. He shook it gravely; then suddenly pressed it so hard that he hurt me. An odd little spasm of feeling passed over his face; dropping my hand, he turned abruptly away, went back to his own room and shut the door.

On the floor between the closed door and me lay a sheet of crumpled paper. I did not know whether it was something of mine or of Dick's. I picked it up and smoothed out the wrinkles.

> Arranged for seven o'clock to-morrow morning, "Italian time" (I read), at the place suggested this afternoon. I think, even with the motor, we ought to give ourselves plenty of margin in starting, for the rendezvous is half an hour's walk up into the mountain after we leave the car, and we don't want the others to get ahead of us. Go to bed early, for you'll want a steady hand. F—— is said to be a crack shot. ROWAN.

Instantly the realization of what this might mean flashed over me. "F——" was Prince Foruna. Dick must have met him again. One of the two had insulted the other and they were going to fight a duel to-morrow morning, somewhere across the Italian frontier. This was the explanation of Dick's sudden change of mind about Mrs. Mabbett, the wistful look in his eyes, his quickly-formed intention to go away, his "good-by," and his thanks to me for the "happy fortnight which had come to an end."

I ran to the door and turned the handle. It was not locked and it opened so unexpectedly that I was almost thrown into the next room. He was sitting at a desk writing a letter.

"Oh, Dick," I stammered. "I know everything—why you're going away, and all. You mustn't—you sha'n't fight a duel with Prince Foruna."

He saw the crumpled paper in my hand, fumbled in the pocket of his dinner-coat, and understood. "Nonsense!" he exclaimed. "Men don't fight duels nowadays."

"They do on the Continent, you know very well, and you're going to. But you sha'n't—even if I have to rush between you and be killed."

He looked at me steadily. "For whom would you sacrifice yourself, my child? Certainly not for me, and I hope not for the prince. He isn't worth it."

He looked so handsome and so brave that I could not keep back my tears. I knew that nothing mattered in the whole world if only he were safe. "For you, Dick—for you," I sobbed. "I'll do anything for you, if only you'll stay. I don't want you to go away from me. I don't want you to be killed."

He caught me in his arms. "Cynthia—you mean it?"

They were almost the same words with which he had asked me if I would be willing to part from him at the church door; but how different was the tone!

"You mean it, Cynthia? It isn't possible you—care?"

"Do you?"

"Horribly."

"So do I. Awfully."

We kissed each other as if the end of the world had come with the end of our fortnight together.

"You won't fight?"

"Dear, I must. You see it was the day I motored to San Remo. He said something, and I thrashed him. Then he challenged me. You wouldn't have me act like a coward? But—if I should come out all right, would you—keep me on to look after you instead of taking Mrs. Mabbett?"

"Hang Mrs. Mabbett!" Yes, it was I who said it. Though I am aware the expression was unfit for the lips of a lady, somehow it seemed the only one to express the fulness of my feeling.

"You'll let me go on hooking your frocks?"

"Yes, and I'll go on lending you my studs if——"

"When I come back. Angel, I never lived until a fortnight ago."

"And I shall never live again if——"

"Till we meet to-morrow."

How I did live until I got the telegram from Ventimiglia I don't know. The Prince was "ill" and it was "all off." But when Dick came back to me I showed him a gray hair which I was sure I had not had yesterday, and he kissed it.

We sent Mrs. Mabbett ten pounds; and the most heavenly thing in the world is to have your husband for your chaperon.

S.S.S. NATURE'S TONIC

The very great majority of persons need a tonic in the Spring or early Summer. The system undergoes a change at this season and the entire physical machinery is disturbed. The general bodily weakness, a tired, worn-out feeling, fickle appetite, poor digestion, a half sick feeling and a general run-down condition of the system, show that the blood is weak or anaemic, and a blood purifying tonic is needed to build up the deranged system and enrich the blood. The use of S.S.S. at this time may save you from a long spell of sickness, and it will certainly prepare you for the long, hot Summer. Many people have put off using a tonic until the system became so weakened and depleted it could not successfully throw off disease germs, and have paid for the neglect with a spell of fever, malaria or some other debilitating sickness. S.S.S. is Nature's ideal tonic. It is a composition of the extracts and juices of roots, herbs and barks which science and experience have proven are best fitted for a tonic to the human system. It contains no minerals of any kind and is therefore perfectly safe for persons of any age. S.S.S. tones up the stomach and digestion, rids the system of that tired, worn-out feeling, and imparts vigor and strength to every part of the body. It purifies and enriches the blood, stimulates the secreting and excreting members to better action, quiets the over-strained nerves, and makes one feel better in every way.

LIVELY KICKER ITEMS

Arizona's Big Man Writes In His Usual Breezy Style.

SQUARE DEAL FOR EVERY ONE

What Happened to a Contemporary Who Fired Six Shots and Then Quit. Cause of Rush of Boarders to the Royal Hotel.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

JIM SPOKES and his gun arrived at Giveadam Gulch on Wednesday morning last, and before noon he had two bullets in him and the gun was nowhere. He will live, but he will have less hilarity about him.

Coming back from Lone Tree Thursday afternoon we saw the body of a dead man suspended to a limb near Lion Hill. We asked for no explanations. Some one thought he ought to be hung and hung him, and—that's all.

Tom Barlow, sheriff of this county, has got to go. He let two cowboys run him four miles the other day and never used his gun once. He says he thought they were chasing him on a wager, but no such excuse will satisfy.

The editor of the Pine Hill Banner called us up by telephone the other day to remark that we were a bald-headed villain and ought to be lynched. The fact that the Kicker has 5,000,000 circulation makes Brother Williams feel bad. We have tried to love him, but he insists on being offish.

We don't know whether to offer Mr. William Scott of this town our sympathies or our congratulations. At any rate, his wife has run away and he never expects to see her again. She got to longing for the beer gardens again and headed for St. Louis.

Workmen began refurnishing the Heliso Opera House last Monday, and up to date they have taken from the walls and ceiling 2,200 bullets. These were fired by the admiring and exuberant audiences during the winter season. Our people are a little skittish, but they mean well.

IF IT DISAPPEARS, IT'S ECZEMA

How to Tell Whether a Skin Affection Is an Inherited Blood Disease or Not.

Sometimes it is hard to determine whether a skin affection is a sign of a blood disorder or simply a form of eczema. Even physicians are often puzzled in their diagnosis. The best way for one afflicted is to go to Meyer Brothers, or any good druggist who handles pure drugs and obtain 50 cents' worth of poslam. Apply this, and if the itching stops at once and the trouble is cured in a few days it may be set down as having been eczema, as this is the way poslam acts in the worst cases of eczema, and in curing acne, herpes, blotches, tetter, piles, salt rheum, rash, barber's and other forms of itch, scaly scalp, and all surface skin affections.

Those who will write to the Emergency Laboratories, No. 32 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York, can secure, by mail free of charge, a supply sufficient to cure a small eczema surface or clear a complexion overnight and remove pimples in twenty-four hours.

A Surprise For You

Your grocer has it waiting for you in a package of Toasted Rice Flakes. It's delicious. Call for it today. 10 cents.

Our esteemed contemporary says in his last issue that we have sought to humiliate him. He probably refers to the incident of last week. He had threatened to shoot us on sight. Meeting him on Apache avenue, we took our stand against a wall fifteen feet off and bade him plug away. He fired six shots and then quit. The nearest bullet did not come within a foot of us. Oh, no—we did not set out to humiliate him. We simply wanted to give him a fair show.

Since our incumbency as postmaster we have bought at our own expense and set up in the postoffice corridor no less than three public clocks. These have been shot to pieces by hilarious individuals. Tomorrow our fourth clock will be hung to the nail, and we give notice right here and now that the man who can shoot at it and not get shot at in return has our permission to bang away. We shan't aim to kill him, but to compel him to take life more seriously.

We received notice last Tuesday morning that Barnes & Fletcher, the firm of shyster lawyers, had five libel suits ready to file against us. We buckled on a gun and called upon the firm, and within ten minutes the papers had been torn up. How those eastern editors let such things bother 'em, when they are so easily disposed of in the bud, we can't make out.

New Tariff Schedule.

In reply to an eastern subscriber we would say that the new tariff schedule neither helps nor hurts Giveadam Gulch. With sixty-four saloons running night and day and wolf steak to be had at 5 cents a pound, this town feels quite independent of the rest of the United States.

Mr. Hank Roblin, who looked upon himself as a general remover of obnoxious persons and who listed us under that head, arrived in town three days ago to remove us. He had come 200 miles to do it, and luck should have smiled on him. She didn't, however. We happened to be facing the door of our sanctum when Hank entered, and we put a bullet through his right arm as he drew. When he had been bandaged up by the doctor we had a talk with him and found him quite entertaining. He cheerfully admitted that he had made a mistake regarding us and graciously accorded us permission to live on.

The Grass Valley Tribune suspended publication with last week's issue. In his valedictory the editor says that he can't stand the strenuous life of the west, but longs for the peace and harmony of a chicken farm in Indiana. We spent half a day with him when he first arrived trying to make him see the difference between the butt and the muzzle of a gun, but it was no use. Such men must fall by the wayside in western journalism.

A Romance Spoiled.

A Chicago paper says that Jim Hellso, who is ourself, won the Arizona Kicker on a hand at poker. We are sorry to spoil the romance, but at the time we founded the Kicker we didn't know the ace of spades from the jack of clubs. It was only when we were absorbed by the west that we began to draw on a four flush and bluff it out. Poker as played in Arizona is not demoralizing. The players constantly think of home and mother, and when a game breaks up it is not unusual to see tears in the eyes of several men. We have had tears in our own eyes and empty pockets to match.

A new chef arrived at the Royal hotel last week, and his doings are the talk of the Gulch. He has made wolf stew that was positively entrancing, and his potpies made from coyote and prairie dog have caused a rush of boarders to the Royal. He says that he can serve mule meat in five different ways and that in throwing away owls and woodchucks and river rats we have almost committed a crime. We wanted something to come along to boom the west, and here it is.

Netting Unnecessary.

A friend from the north had gone to visit the colonel, who lives in the swampy Mississippi river bottoms of Louisiana. There was no mosquito netting over the bed, and in the morning when the negro came with the water and towels the tortured visitor asked: "Sam, why is it that you have no mosquito netting over the bed? Doesn't the colonel have any in his room?"

"No, suh," replied Sam.

"I don't see how he stands it!"

"Well, suh," said Sam, "I reckon it's jes' dis way: In de fo' part uv de night, suh, de colonel's mos' gen'rally so 'toxicated dat he don't pay no 'tention to de 'skeeters, an' in de last' part uv de night, suh, de skeeters is most' gen'ally so 'toxicated dat dey don't pay no 'tention to de colonel."—Everybody's.

Mathematics Made Easy.

Little Doris could not count beyond four. One day, when she was showing me five berries that she had picked, I asked, "How many have you, Doris?"

Her brows puckered a moment. Then, dimpling with smiles, she answered, "Wait till I eat one; then I'll tell you!"—Woman's Home Companion.

SENATOR BROWN TO DEFENSE OF THE INCOME TAX

Nebraska Statesman Calls Justice Brewer's Views Utterly Absurd.

Washington, D. C., July 23.—Characterizing as "utterly ridiculous, absurd, and senile" the statement accredited to Justice Brewer of the supreme court of the United States in his Milwaukee speech to the effect that under a national income tax law states would be "taxed out of their vitality," Senator Brown, of Nebraska, author of the first resolution to refer the question to state legislatures, has uttered a vigorous defense of such a tax.

"I cannot believe that the report of Mr. Brewer's talk is correct," said Mr. Brown. "It puts him in the position of contending that if the federal government is given the power to tax incomes such power will be taken away from the states.

"He is quoted as saying 'If the power to tax incomes is given the government we will see the states taxed not out of their existence but out of their vitality.'

Calls Statement Ridiculous.

"Of course, such a statement is utterly ridiculous, absurd, and senile. In no way and under no circumstances would the proposed amendment to the constitution give the federal government power to tax any state out of either existence or vitality.

"The tax would be laid under the proposed amendment on the incomes of the citizens of all states for federal purposes alone, and the amendment would in no way withdraw from the states the power they already have to tax incomes for state and municipal purposes.

"In my judgment every state in the union will ratify the amendment at its first opportunity. The present agitation all over the country, looking to the calling of special sessions of the legislatures for the purpose of ratifying the amendment, is conclusive evidence that the public minds are aroused upon the question and determined that congress shall have the power to lay and collect taxes on incomes.

"Indeed from all over the country the word comes that even those who are opposed to taxing incomes at the present time are in favor of conferring the power on congress to pass such a law should the needs of the government ever require it."

BREWER REFUSES TO REPLY.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 23.—Supreme Justice Brewer last night, when told of Senator Brown's declaration that his income tax criticism was "absurd and senile," declared he had nothing to say.

"How about the senility?" he was asked.

"I'm still capable," responded the justice. The justice, however, earlier in the day talked on the problem of corporations and the possession of great wealth.

"Let no man despair of the republic," he said. "We have our difficulties today as our fathers did in their time—not the same, but none the less difficulties. But our fathers triumphed and we shall do the same.

Problem of Great Wealth.

"The building up of great fortunes," he said at the outset, "is not strange when business transactions can be arranged by telephone and telegraph to all parts of the land and to all parts of the world. In a few minutes contracts are made that will bring great results, either of success or disaster. But the accumulation of wealth, if honestly made, ought not to create any prejudice, and as the ways in which the fortunes were accumulated are made known will not result in any prejudice. Combination of capital is in itself no more to be condemned than the privileges acquired by it are subject to condemnation.

"One duty which rests really upon men who have acquired wealth honestly is to recognize the fact that they owe to the public the moral duty of using some part of their wealth for the public good. The more our wealthy men come into the habit of helping educational and charitable institutions and organizations the more they will disabuse the minds of the less fortunate of their prejudices.

"Undoubtedly there is not a little social unrest because of this accumulation of capital—of wealth—in the hands of a comparative few. But, on the other hand, there is a great body of our people who have acquired homes, who are enjoying comfortable livelihoods, and who deprecate any disturbances which will affect their present conditions of comfort."

SHE WAS AWAKENED TO SIGN NAME TO BOND

Mrs. Gertrude Bump is Taken to Father's Home at Zanesville.

Sitting in her bed at the Lutheran hospital at 11 o'clock Thursday night, Mrs. Gertrude Bump affixed her own signature to the bond for $5,000 which gives freedom for the present to the Lafayette township woman who on July 11 poisoned her infant babe and then attempted to take her own life. This afternoon, accompanied by her husband and brother-in-law, Mrs. Bump left the hospital in an automobile and was taken to the home of her father, Bruce Merchant, at Zanesville. She has completely recovered from the effects of the poison which she swallowed when determined to die with her babe.

It was necessary to awaken Mrs. Bump to secure her signature to the bond. For several days she has been restless and anxious to get away from the hospital, and late Thursday evening the husband appeared with James A. Aiken and William Brindle, who announced their willingness to sign the bond for the woman's appearance in the circuit court when her case shall be taken up by the grand jury.

The proceedings were held before Justice Tancey late Thursday evening, the husband waiving the preliminary hearing for his wife and the bondsmen affixing their signatures to the $5,000 bond which the state had agreed to accept. Sheriff Reichelderfer and Ralph Bump, the husband, then went to the Lutheran hospital. Mrs. Bump had fallen into a sound slumber in her room, but she was awakened and the purpose of the visit explained to her. To Sheriff Reichelderfer Mrs. Bump said that she understood fully that she was under a charge of murder, and that her husband had told her of the situation. Sitting upright in her bed, Mrs. Bump read the bond through carefully and then affixed her own signature in a firm hand. Beyond expressing satisfaction at being free to go to the home of her father, Mrs. Bump had little to say.

The signing of the bond and its acceptance by Sheriff Reichelderfer released the woman from the custody of the law, and the husband a few minutes later took a trolley car for Roanoke to secure the automobile in which his wife was this afternoon removed to the parental home to await the grand jury's action.

Montana Man Too Feeble to Aid Woman When She Is Attacked.

Hot Springs, Ark., July 23.—With her husband a witness to the attack, but too enfeebled to aid in the struggle, an unknown man, presumably a burglar, unable to free himself from the grasp of Mrs. Elie P. Dorrence, of Helena, Mont., shot and killed the woman in her apartments at a local hotel yesterday.

Mr. Dorrence, when the shot was fired, staggered through the darkened room and caught his wife as she fell. After briefly telling of the occurrence when attaches of the hotel reached the scene Dorrence collapsed and has been unable to make a further statement.

Mrs. Dorrence was a state officer of the Order of Eastern Star of Montana.

THE MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., July 23.—Foreign news regarding wheat was again bearish today and as a result the market here opened with July at $1.12½ to $1.15 and September at $1.08¼@1.08¾. Offerings, however, were not of great volume, and with a fair demand by commission houses, mainly for the deferred months, the market became steadier early in the day. For a time July held within the opening range, but September advanced from 1.08 to $1.08½.

The wheat market became still weaker during the last half of the day, owing to stop-loss selling, part of which was prompted by sharp declines at Minneapolis and Duluth. For July the low point was reached at $1.11 and for September at $1.06⅞. The close was weak with July off 1⅞c at $1.11¾. September was down 1c at $1.07.

Continued light receipts had a tendency to check corn selling. July opened at 71¾c and went to 71½c. September, which opened at 67c to 67¼c, advanced to 67⅝c.

The corn market developed considerable strength later in the day, July advancing to 72⅛c. At the same time September sold up to 68c. The close was strong, with July up ⅜c at 72½c. September was ⅝c higher at 67½@67⅝c.

Oats were bearishly affected by the favorable weather for harvesting. Prices at the opening were unchanged to ¼c lower, July being at 45⅝c and September at 40¼c to 40⅜c. Later September sold off to 40⅛@40¼c, but July for a time held at the opening figure.

The Day on Wall Street.

The copper stocks made a good showing of strength, Amalgamated Copper and Anaconda rising a point. The early advance brought out sales to realize, which forced prices back. New York Central and American Can preferred sold at a decline of 1. Pittsburg Coal preferred advanced 2¾ and Utah Copper . The trading became lethargic with the uncertainty caused by the fluctuating market.

Fluctuations were feeble and irregular and did not move prices far from the previous day's level. Tennessee Copper and Utah Copper rose 2 and Rock Island preferred 1 point. Missouri Pacific declined 1. Bonds were steady.

The tone was slightly firmer but the upward movement was barely perceptible. Trading was intensely dull.

LOCAL MARKET EPITOME.

Buyers of wholesale produce are making a frantic endeavor to land some spring chickens which have been a very scarce article during the past few weeks. Good prices will be paid for the springers and it is likely the movement for them will result in some better supplies tomorrow. Butter and eggs continue the same at the prevailing prices. The potato markets is easy at 50@60c per bushel, while onions are selling at the same figure.

Said G. H. Crouse, of the commission house of G. H. Crouse & Co., this morning: "There will surely be some market for spring chickens tomorrow and it is hardly probable any of that sort of poultry will go astray. Other lines will also be in good demand with the Saturday trade. We are looking for the receipts to be some better."

Rye has fallen to 68c per bushel and oats to ...c. Other markets continue the same.
